Is Romulus ready for a third topless bar?

Only four members of the Romulus City Council appeared at Monday night's meeting, but all stated they were opposed to such an entertainment site less than 500 feet from the Romulus Wesleyan Church.

The issue was raised when Rich P. Wojcik appeared before the council with his attorney Barbara Miller, seeking the transfer of a Class C liquor license with a dance-entertainment permit from Gamp Enterprises to the Rose Wojcik Living Trust.

According to the official notice to the council from City Clerk Linda Choate "this request was before the council on Sept. 6, 1995. Council's motion was to transfer the liquor license, but not the entertainment permit (which allows topless dancing) subject to payment of delinquent taxes."

Choate said the Romulus Police Department investigated the case and recommended denial based on the applicant's indication that the business will be to offer topless female entertainment.

Wojcik paid his grandmother's delinquent taxes, but the Liquor Control unit then refused to transfer the license based on payment of taxes.

Choate said the Romulus Police Department investigated the case and recommended denial based on the applicant's indication that the business will be to offer topless female entertainment.

All three attending Councilmen Michael Prybyla, Ellis Pennington and William Wadsworth as well as Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks verbally opposed the dance-entertainment permit, but no vote was taken.

City Attorney Barry Seifman said he had just received a court order on the case and had not a chance to review the official papers.

He asked and received a tabling of the request until at least the first council meeting in August.

Candidate presses Need for pool, recreation facilities

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is the first of a series of news articles on current Romulus City Council candidates. Other articles will follow in coming weeks.

Rookie City Council candidate Jeannine Wafer-Frison revealed Tuesday she feels that city officials currently are so consumed with the environmental deep well issue that many other critical matters are being left unattended.

Wafer-Frison, 48, the mother of three, revealed the focus of her campaign will be on the need for better city communication on affordable housing in the area and the urgency for the creation of a multi-recreation facility for youth and adults.

"We cannot afford continued tax abatement in the city of Romulus," she said, "and as city officials we must enforce claims by such businesses that they will indeed hire Romulus residents. With the extensive industry now in Romulus, there should be no jobless problems here. Obviously we know there are, so something is definitely amiss."

The determined candidate,

Jeannine Wafer-Frison

who has lived in Romulus for more than 40 years, states "there still is time to save many of the 6 and 7-year-old youth in this city and that is why I will be fighting as hard as I can for a new recreational complex that will include areas for swimming, boxing and basketball activities."

Having received diplomas from Romulus High School and Dorsey Business School, she also has taken classes at

NICU graduates celebrate long lasting friendships

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKIE
MCN Staff Writer

The birth of a baby is a joyous occasion for all those involved and usually means a hospital stay as short as 36 hours. In contrast, a premature or complicated delivery can be devastating and may involve an undetermined hospitalization for the newborn.

With the attention and care from doctors, nurses and health care workers of the Neonatal Intensive Care Units (NICU) at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn and Oakwood Annapolis Center-Wayne, families and newborns have an extensive foundation of support.

Since its inception, nearly 300 NICU patients have successfully graduated from their stay in the NICU. In celebration of the graduates success and of the programs medical achievements, the Oakwood Healthcare System is hosting its 12th annual NICU picnic for all graduates of the NICU departments.

The festivities reunite graduates from the NICU, their parents, and health care providers who have built long-lasting relationships through their experiences in the unit.

"We get very attached to each other," said Thomas Malone, M.D. corporate director of

We get very attached to each other. Emotions run high in life-or-death situations, and that's what most of our patients and families are facing.

- Thomas Malone

Neonatology for Oakwood Healthcare System. "Emotions run high in life-or-death situations, and that's what most of our patients and families are facing."

Testimony of the departments dedication, comes easily from Renee Harris of Inkster. Her daughter Tiffany was born prematurely, weighing only one pound, two ounces.

Tiffany's complications from her early birth included chronic lung disease, bacterial and fungal infections and apnea (frequent pauses in breathing). Her twin died before birth. However, with the extensive training and support of the NICU staff, Tiffany was able to leave the hospital after 104 days of treatment and a host of friends that truly cared for her.

"Tiffany's will to survive, and other's like her, is an inspiration to all of us who care for premature infants. We celebrate the life of every one of our patients," said Malone.

The reunion picnic in the past has attracted nearly 1000 guests, with nearly 300 NICU grads, including twins, triplets, and even a set of quadruplets. The event will be scheduled from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. July 29 at Ford Field in west Dearborn, picnic area two. The picnic helps to renew the bonds of friendship such a traumatic experience can create.

One NICU graduate many of the Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center staff is looking forward to seeing will be there Saturday. Tiffany is now a happy and healthy nine-month-old. Renee and her daughter will attend the picnic to celebrate her graduation and her life.

Residents invited to open house

To observe the 60th anniversary of the Social Security administration, there will be an open house from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 14, at the Social Security office, 2500 Hamlin, Inkster.

The office is located directly behind the fire station on Michigan Avenue, west of Inkster Road.

The opening ceremony will begin at 10 a.m. with general informational seminars given at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Historical exhibits, video presentation, office tours, refreshments will be available.

The 60th Anniversary of the Social Security system is a time to celebrate. It helps us focus on one of the good things which we aspire, according to Frances M. Heimes-Savickis, field representative.

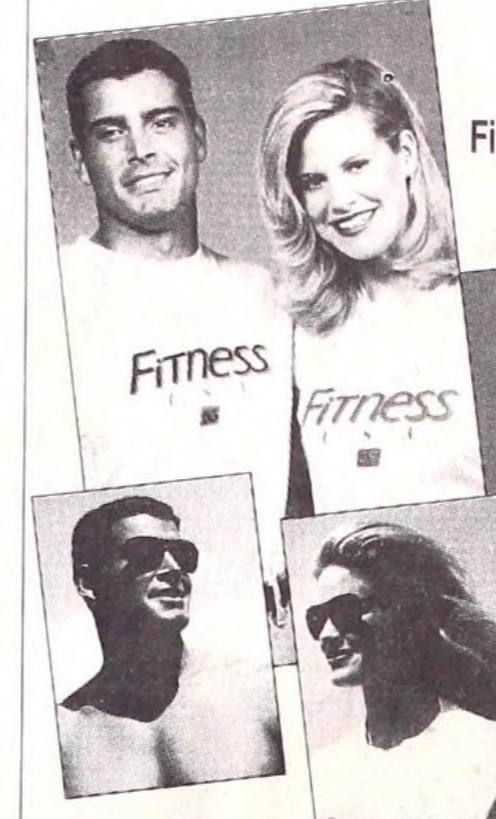

Social Security represents one of the nation's most successful social programs - one that supports the lives and dreams of millions of people. It's a good idea to come take time out to celebrate its history and what it has come to mean to our society, she said.

When President Roosevelt signed the original Social Security Act on Aug. 14, 1935, it was in the midst of the Great Depression. High unemployment and business failures resulted in great deprivation and poverty and dramatized the vulnerability of the American worker to economic forces outside his/her control. In this environment, private and state sources of help were woefully inadequate and a federal answer became necessary.

Detroit Business Institute and Ross Business College.

In the past she has worked for the Romulus Roman and Romulus News, J.C. Penny Stores and the security units at Detroit Metro Airport.

She has served on the Mayor's Drug Task Force and has been administrative assistant to Rev. Walter A. Steen of the Holy City Church of Inkster.

She currently is employed with MIZPAH Group Homes Inc of Detroit. Her employer Alonzo K. Morgan endorses her run for the council stating she is a dedicated employee, "who keeps a sincere focus on the needs of those with whom she is allied."

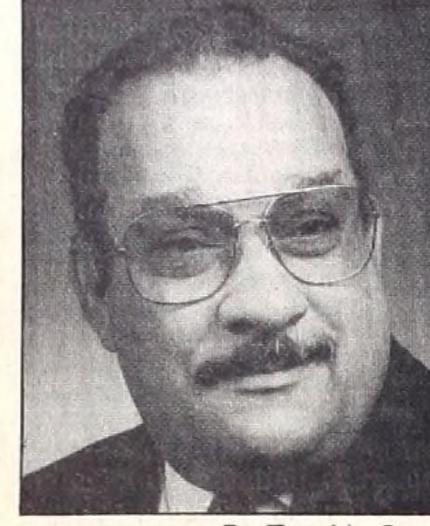

She currently is helping to coordinate the '50s and '60s Romulus High School Class Reunion Picnic slated for Aug. 26 at Elmer Johnson Park.

"We have already enrolled 115 alumni and hope to sign on another 100 before the picnic," she said.

Wafer-Frison is the mother of three grown children, LaTrice, Sherri and Jerome.

She plans to do some extended door to door vote solicitations with the help of her campaign committee.

When contacted Monday, Romulus Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Bedell

said "I'm reluctant to make any extensive remarks on Terry at this time, since nothing is final."

"But Terry has been a strong part of this administration for many years. I can understand why the Inkster School District would seek his leadership," Bedell continued.

Currently LeCesne handles both the curriculum and personnel issues for the Romulus School District.

Bedell said if for any reason LeCesne and the Inkster School Board cannot settle on a salary and benefits package, he would more than welcome LeCesne's continued service in Romulus.

If LeCesne does give notice that he is leaving the Romulus School District, Bedell feels a number of school board members apparently will favor considering outside candidates for his post, as well as current district employees.

Lot purchases okayed for expanded salon

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A request to purchase eight lots in the Sunnyside Acres subdivision was approved by the Romulus City Council to allow the new owners to expand a hair salon business.

The applicant, Alice (Vonam) Stone, won the recommendation of the city's Property Disposition Committee recently to buy lots 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, and 102 at a cost of $1,600.

Stone was told that the sale was approved by the council with the stipulation that a building permit must be obtained within one year and the construction of the hair salon business must be completed within two years.

Stone said the family business has been located in Romulus for five years and previously operated in Detroit for 20 years. It currently is located at 31270 Ecorse near Merriman and employs six hair stylists and two nail technicians.

brothers, boyfriends or other male family members were out hunting, Pennington said.

Wadsworth added allowing a topless bar at Five Points in Romulus would add about 400 to 500 cars to an already highly traveled area.

The bar is currently closed, all in attendance agreed, but no one was sure how many years that closure had lasted.

Council candidate Mary Collins asked since the building had been closed for a period of time, "does it meet the current code conditions?"

Collins vowed she will be back on Aug. 7, when the permit issue may be taken off the table.

According to liquor laws such topless entertainment locations are not permitted within 500 feet of churches, homes or parks and the old Silver Bullet Bar fails in all three categories, Seifman said.

Pennington said a dance permit had been issued previously, when the proprietor said it would only be used once or twice a year.

That agreement would have allowed male strippers to entertain women family members, while their husbands,

Thief drops 20 pagers

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

An agile quick thief briefly escaped with 20 pagers and various jewelry items, but was forced to throw them away when a party store attendant chased him over a wall near Wayne Road.

Detective Lt. Kenneth Kraus said the thief entered Kegger's Party Store on Wayne Road shortly after 2 p.m. Monday.

The man knocked the attendant off balance and then fled from the store with a display box filled with pagers and jewelry, Kraus said.

The 25-year-old party store employee regained his composure and raced after the thief, hopping over a low wall the intruder had leapt over only moments before.

Kraus said the thief was forced to drop the box as he scaled the wall. Romulus police recovered the stolen items and called in a Wayne Police tracking dog in an effort to find the thief.

However, no arrests were made.

Police describe the thief as a black male in the early 20s, about 5 feet 8 inches tall with a medium build. He reportedly was wearing a red T-shirt and dark trousers.

The night before, Kraus said, a 20-year-old Saline woman reported she was attacked by two men in the parking area near Big Boy's Restaurant on Merriman Road.

The victim said she was knocked down and beaten by two men, who fled with her purse. She told police one man knocked her down as she screamed and the other hit her in the head with a blunt object.

She also said her head struck the pavement as she fell to the ground.

The first subject was described as a tall black male, in his 20s, wearing an orange tank top. The second man was also listed as a black male, thin build, with a white tank top and orange shorts.

Both suspects are still being sought.

Now train speed condemned

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Veteran Councilman Ellis Pennington, long a critic of local railroad passage through Romulus, now has turned his attention to poor railroad crossing conditions and the speed of the trains passing through the city.

Pennington has long been a critic of the loud train sirens sounding in the night, as they pass through areas housing senior citizens.

But now Pennington has added train speed to the list of woes affecting local home owners. He asked City Attorney Barry Seifman to check and see if the city can regulate the speed of trains, since he claims their vibrations at high speeds have adverse impacts on local homes and other buildings.

Pennington said, "I see our attorney shaking his head, so in that case I would recommend that we contact our state legislators for help in slowing down these trains...they even shake up our residents as they are sitting on their porches."

Pennington added, "The railroads should not have the right to destroy private property by literally shaking cement loose from foundations."

Seifman told Pennington, "We may be able to control train whistles and bells, and even extended road blockages, but not the speed of trains."

Playground placed on hold

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A request to create a modern new playground area at Halecreek Elementary School was placed on hold Monday night, as the school's Parent-Teacher Guild sought matching funds from the Romulus School District for the nearly $40,000 project.

A letter to school board members from the Halecreek PTG executive board members revealed that the parents have worked on purchasing some needed playground equipment for the past three years.

Donna Wilson, PTG leader, said the group obtained six bids from four different companies on playground equipment.

Wilson revealed that the volunteer group has had fund raisers and has amassed more than $12,000 in funds for the project.

But she explained that the cost of the play structure they are looking at costs $28,458 including shipping. Installation would cost another $9,477 but that amount could be trimmed if the district's maintenance department could provide the installation labor.

Site preparation could cost $730 and even that could be cut since some parents have access to large equipment, Wilson wrote.

Wilson said "we are trying to obtain donations from local businesses to help with the funding."

- Donna Wilson

Recently the parents and teachers gathered for a weekend and sanded and painted the existing play equipment, pending the purchase of the updated play equipment.

Romulus School Board President Debra Hoffman said the board tabled the request, hoping the parents' group would seek other financial gifts.

Streetscape enhances Canton, brings identity

By HEATHER NEEDHAM
MCN Staff Writer

After more than 10 years of delays, the Canton Streetscape project officially opened Thursday along Ford Road, between Sheldon and Morton Taylor Roads.

The project consists of wide sidewalks, plants, brick walls, and decorative lights. The price tag was $2 million, and was funded through business tax dollars.

While most communities have a downtown to keep things centralized, Canton Township has no downtown, so this project is welcome, said Ken Vyles, assistant to township supervisor Thomas Yack.

"The whole idea is to give

"The whole idea is to give an identity to Canton Township. It's at the heart of our commercial center."

- Ken Vyles

an identity to Canton Township," Vyles said. "It's at the heart of our commercial center." The project is part of making the area more "pedestrian-friendly."

The original plan for the project included an amphitheater, a special road and condominiums, but a lawsuit settlement changed the plans. The current area lies along the perimeter of the district, not inside it, Vyles said.

"The compromise is what you see," he said, adding "(the original project) was a much grander plan."

Though the years of delays were frustrating, they ended up being a blessing in disguise for the Downtown Development Authority. The DDA collects money for community projects each year, and because of the delays, the money accumulated.

"Being that it took ten years actually worked in our behalf," Vyles said.

A common misconception is that the project was funded from residents' tax money. However, the project was funded primarily by tax dollars generated from area businesses, Vyles said.

One of the beautification measures was burying the utility lines, to "make it look better," Vyles said. They also put in new street lights and sidewalks. For this, they had to get easements, or legal permission to do the work from the business owners. This part of the project took six months and involved letter writing, legal matters, etc.

"This gives us a right to build this thing, but now we have to maintain it," Vyles said. "It could have been a real problem if property owners didn't cooperate."

Beautification brings quality to community

By HEATHER NEEDHAM
MCN Staff Writer

A new look has been created along Ford Road, between Sheldon and Morton Taylor roads.

The $2 million Canton Streetscape project officially opens Thursday featuring wide sidewalks, plants, brick walls, and decorative lights. While most communities have a downtown to keep things centralized, Canton Township has no downtown, so this project was a necessity to provide a central focus to the community.

Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack said the project is helping bring an "aesthetic" quality to Canton Township.

"We're happy it's finished," Yack said. "Everyone has been pleased with the results."

"I think it's a commitment to the business community," he said.

Most downtown areas have an automatic aesthetic advantage because all of the buildings are tied together, but Canton's project is tied together in a non-literal way, Yack said.

Yack likened the project to the auto industry's changing car models every five or six years.

Ford Road (M-153) is Canton's primary commercial corridor for Canton, and is home to major retailers such as Meijer, Kmart, Home Depot and Target.

The DDA Streetscape plan is complete along Ford Road. One of the beautification measures was burying the utility lines. Then new street lights, sidewalks and landscaping were added.

If you are a steady reader of this newspaper, you probably have noticed a number of changes since the Detroit newspaper strike began 14 days ago. Advertising has increased dramatically thus creating an opportunity for us to provide more news and features.

The increase is most noticeable in our Sunday product, The Eyewitness. Until last week a tabloid product, the additional advertising has required us to make it a full-sized newspaper, doubling the size and number of pages. As this product evolves, you will notice many more features in The Eyewitness like a weekly crossword puzzle, horoscopes, comics, top songs, movies and video rentals.

That doesn't mean we intend to re-focus our Sunday efforts. A few months ago, we changed the name of the Sunday newspapers to Eyewitness, and began an all out assault to provide the best investigative stories short of the dailies. Despite taking a lot of heat for our provocative front page photos, we have become a major source for those looking for the story behind the headlines.

For instance, our Eyewitness investigative reporter Ivan Helfman has become a recognized authority on the Michigan Militia. His many reports on their activities have gained Eyewitness national exposure as reporters from Time Magazine, New York Times, The Village Voice and Rolling Stone have used his information to file their stories.

The new size and increased page count will allow Michigan Community Newspapers to expand these types of stories as well as provide the features readers would like that we haven't been able to provide because of limited space.

Equally exciting is the shopping values we now provide. Meijer has signed a contract to provide their popular insert to Eyewitness readers on a consistent basis. Ditto Best Buy, Art Van and Home Depot. Since the strike began we have provided readers with ads from Hudson's, ABC Warehouse, Adray's, J.C. Penney's, Fretters, Builder's Square and Kohl's.

The point is the workload has increased tremendously at MCN. Your neighborhood reporters, sales representatives and delivery people are working extra hard to provide you with an excellent newspaper that is well worth the subscription price. If you don't read us regularly, I guarantee you will be pleasantly surprised with the new, expanded version of the local newspaper. Pick one up and take a peek!

We encourage Wayne officials to take another look at the Peace Memorial site in an effort to open up the view of the monument.

Many residents including former mayor Paul Lada have complained that the new library blocks the view of the Peace Memorial. Lada went so far as to say the beautiful structure that pays homage to our veterans new looks like an ugly smokestack.

He's right. City officials have promised to enhance the area. We hope that means the monument will again hold a position of prominence in the eyes of motorists as they pass by the new library.

Politicians 'rev' up for Romulus race

Election Day 1995 will be different in Romulus. But the symbolic results may be the same—only the names of the winners will be different.

The biggest difference will be that Mayor Beverly McAnally accustomed to running unopposed will face former mayor William Oakley this November.

Any bomb shells in that race probably will occur after Labor Day, since there is no primary on that level.

In fact the City Council primary will only eliminate one of the current 15 candidates, thus about the only excitement expected on the council level is finishing position.

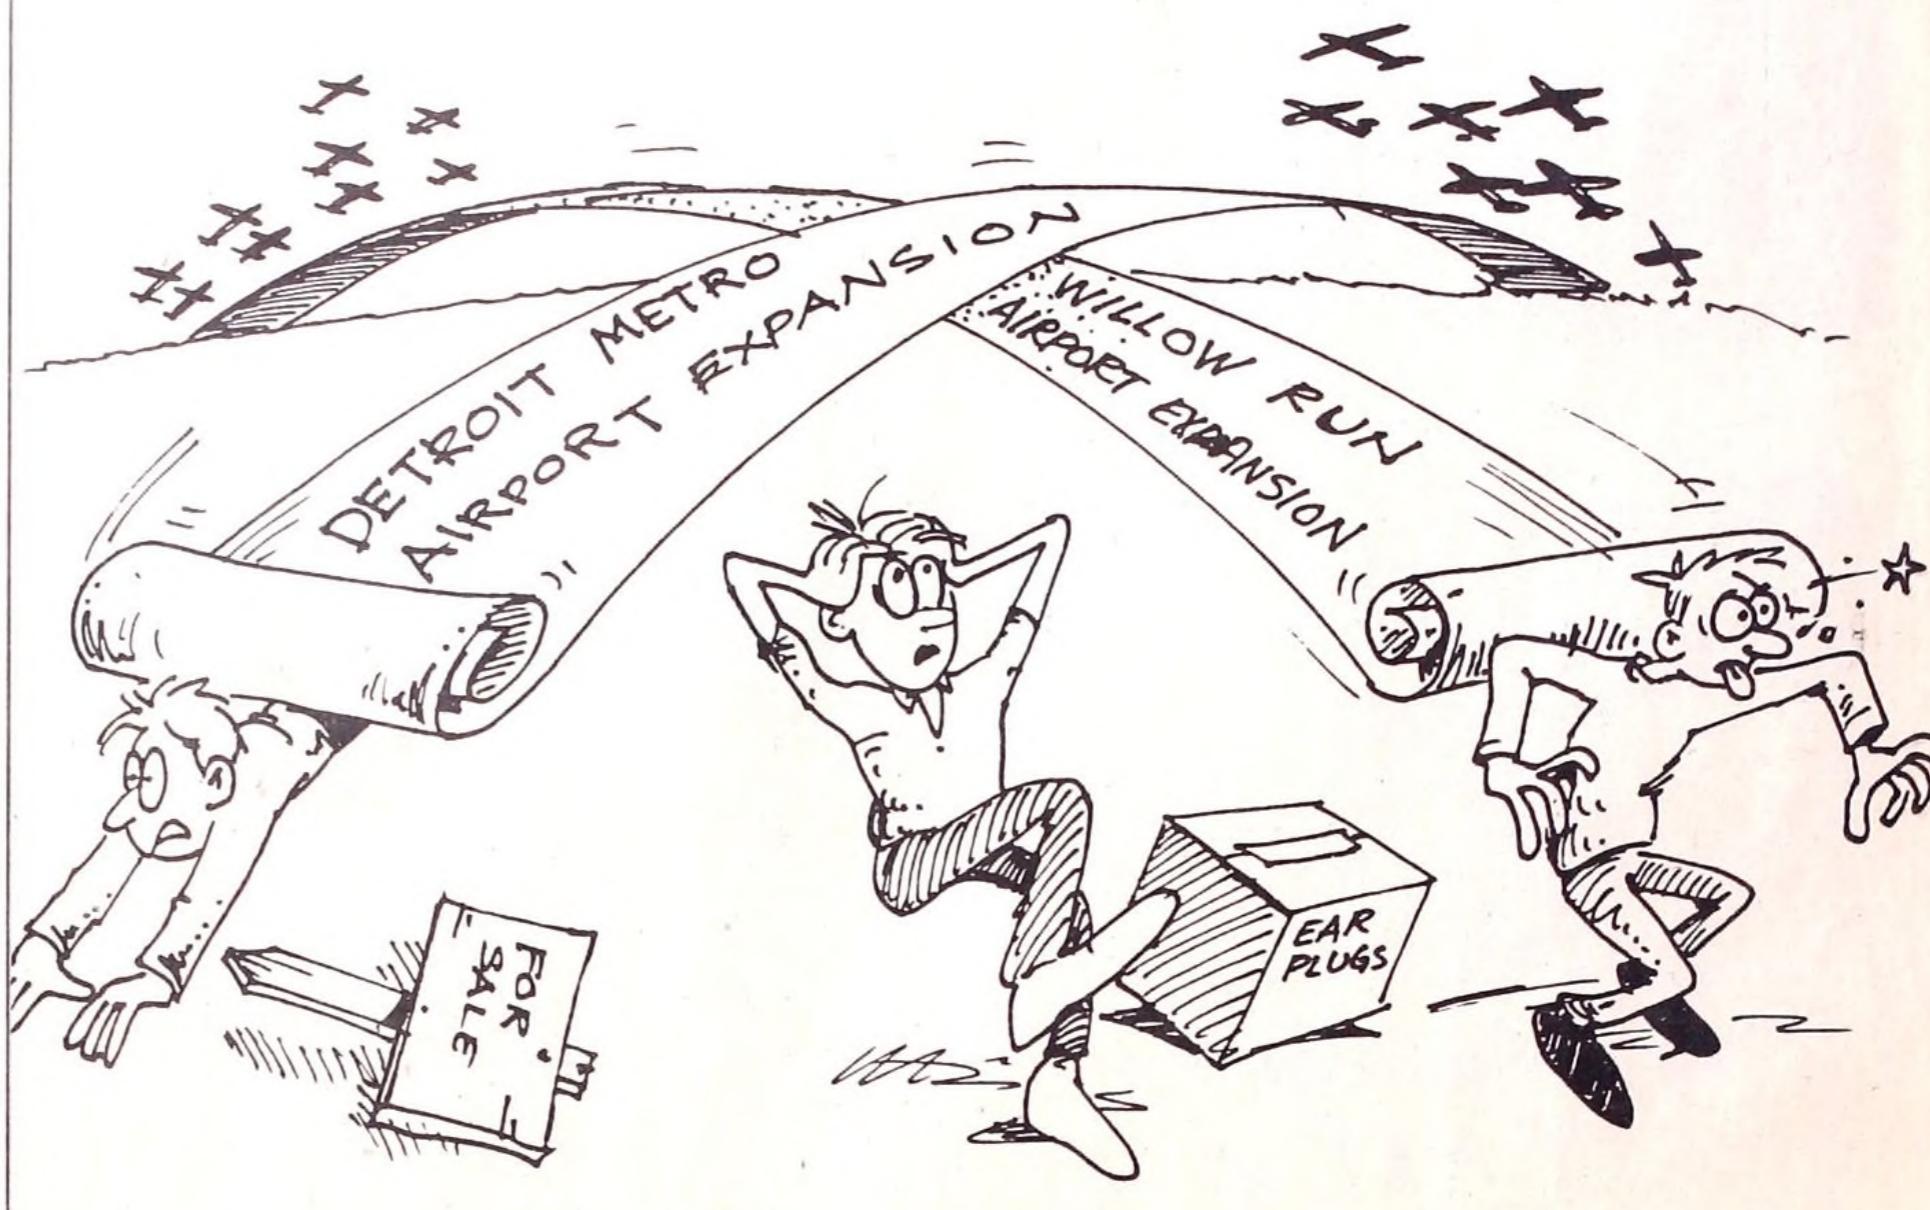

Since Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks has already announced her planned retirement, a limited battle may Politicians criticized

To the editor:

Senator Spence Abraham and Carl Levin should be joined at the hips. They have voted together on so many important issues that I am wondering when Abraham will pull a "Don Riegle" and switch parties? Abraham ran for office attacking Ronna Romney and Carr as liberal on many issues and yet when he votes on important conservative principles, Levin and Abraham vote together more than not!

For example, a few months ago the Senate voted to determine if they should conduct a fact finding mission on what happened at WACO. Senator Abraham voted no! Not surprisingly so did Senator Carl Levin. The ATF was described by President Ronald Reagan as a rogue agency, so why did this turn coat conservative, "Republican" Spencer Abraham vote to continue the "cover-up"??

Second, last week the Senate voted to require reporters who cover our federal government's business to report where they get their "soft" income from. Conservative principles call for shining the light of truth on issues not allowing the cover-up to continue. Of course, Abraham and Levin voted against making the "journalists" in Washington tell where they get their "slush" moneys from!!

For those of you who don't get it, the very reason Ronald Reagan was such a loved figure in our country is for his honesty! When an issue came before the national spot light, I knew what Ronald Reagan was going to do. The reason was simple, he was guided by conservative principles and we all knew where he was going to come down. Abraham, so far, has proven to be nothing more than a "Bush" style Republican. A Republican of convenience, who votes in lock step with Socialist principles and of course with Carl Levin.

Help is available

To the editor:

I work as a medical claims adjuster for an auto insurance carrier. The cover story of June 11 by Ivan Helfman raised some questions which I believe warranted further explanation/clarification since the following would apply:

Work loss benefits are payable for three years from the date of loss, providing there is an objective disability. Therefore, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton would have been eligible to 85 percent of their gross wages from July 8 1994 to July 7 1997.

Also, if unable to perform daily chores (shopping, cleaning, etc.), they would be eligible for $20/day each for a chore provider, for the same three-year period.

All reasonably incurred medical expenses related to the care, recovery and rehabilitation for injuries related to the auto accident are payable for life.

This includes medications and 21 cents per mile, mileage reimbursement. To seek medical treatment (under some circumstances) bus or cab fare would be covered as well as parking fees.

Workers medical benefits (known as PIP benefits—Personal Injury Protection Benefits) are paid based on the following order of priority (regardless of fault):

• Your own auto insurance.
• The auto insurer of a spouse or resident relative.
• If A and B do not apply, then PIP benefits can be sought from the State of Michigan.

The only exception is that no PIP benefits are paid to the driver of his/her own uninsured vehicle.

Other examples where PIP coverage applies: You are hit by an auto as a pedestrian;

You are hit by an auto as a bicyclist; You are a passenger in a vehicle.

They had three years from the date of loss to settle. They did not need an attorney to settle.

If unable to perform former occupation, they would be eligible for free job placement/retraining.

My questions are:

• If they are still disabled, why are they not receiving work loss benefits?

• How much did each receive as a liability settlement, and why are they broke in less than a year?

(Most companies offer to structure settlements investing the money in an annuity which can considerably increase the settlement. The Thornton's would have had control over when, how often and in what amounts the annuity paid them).

• Why are there unpaid hospital/medical bills? It does not matter that they were ineligible for medical insurance, the auto policy would pay.

• Also, if permanently injured, why did they settle so quickly?

I think it would be interesting to know the answers to my questions.

Sound-Off callers say 'no' to Willow expansion

The majority of callers to the Sound-Off 729-4006 line this week voiced objections to the Willow Run expansion plans, which include a trade port.

Readers are encouraged to call the Sound-Off line between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. weekdays and at any time during the weekend to voice their opinions on issues of general interest.

Callers are asked to speak clearly and to avoid personal attacks and profanity.

I attended the meeting in Canton on June 24 about the Willow Run Airport expansion. I was very disturbed at the off-hand way that the airport representatives dismissed the possibility of expanding the airport in a southwest direction because of water contamination. It was not clearly stated whether or not the water was already contaminated and they never examined the possibility of cleaning it up. If they were concerned about contaminating the water, then why were they not concerned with contaminating the air we breathe in the flight path? I don't think that it is reasonable to consider only one option here. They say that the trade port and the airport are two separate issues, but they seem pretty closely linked. What I don't understand is why they want to up trade port businesses in the areas they are discussing when they are already able to exist at a facility that can handle them, Metro Airport.

I am a resident of Canton and I invite anyone who thinks

We need another cable company in the city of Romulus. The one we have now, Omnicom, stinks. Programming is so outdated, they have too much that it is a good idea to expand Willow Run Airport to spend a day at my home and listen to the planes that fly over my home. I think that expansion will greatly affect the resale value of my home.

In response to the Willow Run airport expansion. I don't understand why people would be opposed to something that is going to create jobs and benefit the economy in the area. As far as noise is concerned, the F.A.A. is imposing restrictions to reduce the noise levels. I just think that it would be a great increase for this community's employment rates.

We need another cable company in the city of Romulus. The one we have now, Omnicom, stinks. Programming is so outdated, they have too much Lucy, the Jetsons, and Yogi Bear. My cable goes out three times a week. If I had a broken down jack ass and a buck board, I could rest the whole county by now. Every time I call to complain, they tell me that their lines are down. When I try to call and report problems they get so obnoxious and sometimes leave the phone off the hook. I think that this is a hell of a way to treat their customers.

The Metro Airport expansion is a good idea because they need to fly me out of here before I go insane. I have lived here for 41 years and the planes keep getting worse and worse. It is totally out of control. In the summertime when the windows are open the dishes fall out of the cabinet. The only way I could sell my home here would be if the buyers were deaf.

How long are the police in Westland going to ignore these aggressive drivers on the road? You can be doing the speed limit and they will leave you in the dust because they are going 60 or 70 miles per hour. The police need to get some eyes.

The intersection at Inkster and Ecorse where the mayor has given permission to put in a truck stop is a terrible thing. We need this like we need another hole in our heads. There was already enough traffic and accidents there. This was a very dumb idea.

We are seeking input from our readers on the following questions:

Considering the high level of publicity surrounding both the Susan Smith case and the O.J. Simpson trial, do you think television cameras in the courtroom are beneficial to the judicial system?

Do you believe more competition is needed in the cable television industry?

Would you install a device in your television set to block out objectionable programs?

Should the school term be extended to a year-long one with short vacations throughout the year, instead of a two-and-a-half month summer break?

Change is difficult, but necessary step needed

By Steward L. Tubbs
Guest Editorial

A question often asked is, "Why is it so hard to get someone to change?" Unfortunately, this is often asked quite a lot. If you have ever given up trying to stick to your new year's resolutions you know what I mean.

Many years ago I remember being told by my orthodontist that even though I wore braces on my teeth for three years, the teeth would tend to go back to their original position unless I wore a retainer every night to keep that from happening. I went off to college and left my retainer at home. You can guess the rest.

A few years later I read that one of the Air Force bases in Viet Nam that was built with millions of taxpayer's dollars had eventually been covered over by the original jungle and there was hardly a trace of it left.

In spite of all the failures to maintain change, if you watch any of the infomercials on television there is still a lot of interest in self improvement and change. On any weekend morning you can see everything from Richard Simmons trying to convince us to "tone may take place for her leadership position.

Councilman Randy Gear would love to rise to that position in his ultimate quest to some day become mayor. No other candidate to date has announced such aspirations.

In the year that could again spell doom for some incumbents, long term Councilmen Jimmie Raspberry and Ellis Pennington and first term Councilman Michael Prybyla (who ended in a tie vote with Mary Collins his first time out) could be hard pressed for re-election.

Some feel that Councilmen

Gear and William Wadsworth are the only two council persons sure of re-election, but in a town so badly divided on the environmental well issue even that contains no guarantee.

The challengers who face an early edge in the council campaign include perennial candidate Collins, truck dealer William Crova, anti-well spokeswoman Debby Romak, Zoning Board of Appeals Chairman Stanley Kreft and deep well site property owner John Ryznar.

But since door to door campaigning has always proved a powerful tool in getting elected even such lesser known names including Steve Bossidis, Tony Heimberger and Jeannine Wafer-Frisson could stage upset wins if they conduct energetic campaigns.

Several candidates' nights are being talked about in the hopes that the election will not be decided on one issue alone—that of the environmental deep well.

While most observers feel that McAnalley is not unbeatable, they do feel that Oakley will have to run an extremely active campaign and will have to provide a strong personal vision for the future of Romulus, if he has any hopes of beating McAnalley.

To date Oakley has remained extremely quiet on his campaign plans and many of his supporters hope he will not wait until after the primary season to speak out on critical city-wide issues.

But the one thing that all agree on is that both the mayor and council races could become bitter before election day.

Once the winners are announced in early November, insiders say, the city will be primed for another two years of divisive city dialogue and legal battles.

'Memories That Last A Lifetime'

Women at the race track

By Don Nicholson

Isn't it amazing that one of the only sports that has men and women compete against each other on equal terms, is also the fastest motor sport around. Once the fire suit and the helmet go on it's fierce competition to the end. On a weekly basis names like Shirley Muldowney, Daniel De Porter and Della Woods have been heard blaring over the PA systems at drag strips all across the country running against males like "Big Daddy" Don Garlits, Don "The Snake" Prudohome, and John Force.

In the local tracks those names are replaced by housewives, secretaries, and girlfriends. They race against a clock just like the men. The cars they drive are as fast or faster than the men drive. In the amateur or sportsman classes speed is set by your wallet or your ego. The idea is to build a car that is consistent and to have a driver that is the same way. Or drive the family grocery getter, as I said speed is not the winner in the sportsman classes. Cars are put into a class by there E.T. 14 seconds and slower is what is called the street class and you will see cars from a mild Mustang to the gas economy Escort racing side by side. Only the slower Escort will get a head start. The finish and start will depend on how good the driver really is. Reaction time is the winner in most races and women have been known for great reaction times.

I had the pleasure to talk with two lady racers who are both famous behind the wheel, Sandy Bowman and Della Woods. Both women started racing in the middle 60's and they also started on the street!!! Something both drivers don't recommend anymore. Sandy is well known at Milan Dragway where she has taken Rookie of the Year, and Female Driver of the Year 4 times. Sandy's 11 second 120 mph plus Chevy Nova is one of the most feared cars at the track. In the pits Sandy's nickname is "The Granny From Ypsilanti" her family is always with her, including her husband Billy who is the crew chief. Sandy has a daughter and daughter-in-law who also race with her in their pit area. The grandchildren play and help out when the car needs some work. Not only is Sandy involved but the whole family is.

Della Woods took a different route on the way to fame, leaving the Woodward Scene behind. Racing back in the hey day of Motor City Dragway with Don Garlits, Roger Lindamood and other names still known on the top fuel circuit. Della moved to fuel cars which are the wildest most unpredictable cars running in drag racing. Also this is the class that is now running at over 300 mph in just 1/4 mile. Della with help from her brother who owned Bernella's Speed Shop in Lake Orion and Dee her husband moved to the ranks as the fastest lady in drag racing, she was also the first lady in the Five Second Quarter Mile Club. Due to the high cost of the class, (over one million dollars per year.) And other family commitments, Della has been out of racing for a while. With the purchase of a brand new four second funny car, Della will be returning to the circuit this year. Back in the late 60's Della had a problem getting a license to race. Even with twice the number of drivers required signing her lic. her original lic. should go to a museum framed with the heading of who's who in drag racing. She had all the top names saying she was good enough for them to race side by side but the sanctioning organization still gave her a hard time.

This is not a Della or Sandy Story, but hopefully a little encouragement for more women to get involved in something that is a lot of fun and not just a way for us men to get away from the family for the day.

A July 28 final conference has been scheduled for an Inkster man charged with armed robbery and home invasion before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Gershwin Drain.

Terrell Cotton was arraigned May 18 in the 29th District Court. Approximately 3:30 a.m. May 16 he allegedly broke into a Westchester apartment located off Michigan Avenue in Wayne and forced his girlfriend out of her home by knifepoint, according to police.

"He wanted his girlfriend to assist him with a robbery," said Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews. "She refused to assist him. She was returned, and then he went to the Dairy Mart on Wayne Road where the robbery occurred."

The robbery took place approximately 3:55 a.m. May 16. The defendant allegedly robbed the attendant by knifepoint. After he took money from the cash register, he fled on foot.

Strike!

No end in sight for daily newspaper walkout, bargaining

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

As the newspaper strike and the advertising and subscription boycotts head into the second week, members of The Detroit News' Western Wayne County bureau continue to trod on the picket line with 2,500 striking Detroit News and Detroit Free Press workers.

Adjusting from reporting to picketing has not been easy for two bureau members, Robert Ankeny and Tom Nord.

"It's depressing not to be able to do a job that I've been doing for 30 years," said Westland's Robert Ankeny. "I'm not happy being on a picket line instead of reporting."

Ankeny — whose gray hair and mustache give him an air of distinction — is a founding member of Local 22 of the Newspaper Guild of Detroit.

Last Thursday morning, as the heat wave waned, he picked the News' fortress — a three-story stone building that sits on its own block on Lafayette and Third streets in downtown Detroit.

Reporters for both The News and The Free Press — casually clad in T-shirts, shorts, cut-offs, and other dog-days-of-summer clothes — are taking turns picketing the newspapers' editorial offices.

Despite the strike, The News and The Free Press continue to publish a combined edition, albeit one without much advertising.

"My job is being done by editors and nonunion reporters," Ankeny said. "It hurts to see my beat taken over by transients."

Fortunately, he's able to keep his writing skills sharp by freelancing for out-of-town publications.

The ordeal is causing mixed feelings in Ankeny, who has been put in the position of having to ask his long-time readers not to buy The News.

"When not picketing, I spend the rest of my day doing housework and phoning

"My job is being done by editors and nonunion reporters."

- Robert Ankeny

friends and relatives and asking them to cancel their subscriptions."

Many have.

Since his wife, Gloria, is a school teacher in Dearborn, Ankeny is not in dire financial straits.

"Of course, it's always a burden when you lose your pay. "And my health care expires next month," he said.

Despite the stress, Ankeny maintained a smile as he circled the building, carrying a sign that said, "Do not advertise."

His peaceful protesting style was in contrast to the rabble-rousers who bellowed insults at suspected scabs.

Taunts weren't Ankeny's style. To him the strike meant loyalty to his union's cause.

"It's gratifying to see how much support we're getting from our colleagues and family," he said. "One top editor told us that no more than half-a-dozen reporters would walk out. He had a rude awakening when everybody left and when not one guild member crossed the line."

"My wife and daughter, Leah, are in total support. They've picketed with me and attended our rallies."

Ankeny said he fears that the strike could last a long time.

"Gannett did a lot of preparation for this strike," he said. "They brought in security men from all over the country, including 500 combat-boot-wearing guys from the West."

Union literature described the men as "paramilitary guards" and "company goons."

If the strike drags on, Ankeny said he might accept a job in public relations jobs.

Nord, another low-key Western Wayne bureau reporter, picketed with Ankeny.

"I never imagined that, in this day and age, I'd be walking a picket line," Nord said. "But I did a financial gut check and I'm ready for a long strike."

A tall, broad Baby Huey of a man in his late 20s, Nord has been with The News for nine months. He expects a long strike.

"Gannett doesn't want to deal with unions," he said. "They're doing everything they can to beat us."

Single, Nord said that he might have to get a part-time job to weather the strike.

"I like Detroit — it's a great newspaper town," he said. "I don't want to move." Nord recently came here from Saginaw.

As for the strike's fallout, he said: "Nobody enjoys walking on a picket line. And Western Wayne County's readers are missing one more voice that provided in-depth news coverage. The out-of-town scabs don't have the sources or insight that the regular reporters had."

Despite the line's discomfort, Nord spends most of his time picketing.

"It's easier for me to get here than for most of the others," he said.

Since Monday, the striking editors, reporters, and photographers have combined to form a new on-line newspaper, The Detroit Journal — "an attempt to fill the information and opinion gap," according to its first editorial.

Not available in print, the paper may be accessed on the Internet's World Wide Web at <http://www.rust.net/workers/strike.html>. Public libraries with access to the MetroNet server can access the newspaper's articles but not its photographs or graphics.

So far, no articles by Ankeny or Nord have appeared.

Newspaper reporter interviewed by Current Affair

An unexpected call was recently received by Margo Dewey, Michigan Community Newspaper news editor/reporter.

Current Affair reporter Jason Goodman was on the line asking if he could interview Dewey about the news story she put together on Loretta Pullins.

Pullins, 18, found out last fall she was pregnant. Approximately two months into her pregnancy, she found a lump on her shoulder. She decided to go to the doctor to find out what the unusual mass could be.

The Wayne Memorial High School graduate was told by her doctor she had cancer (Hodgkins). She made the courageous decision to risk her own life and not have chemotherapy or radiation in order to save the life of her baby.

The story has a happy ending as Pullins successfully delivered her baby daughter Alana Kieran Pullins May 16. Pullins is now undergoing chemotherapy, and the treatment is having a positive effect.

Goodman arrived at the newspaper office in Wayne to interview Dewey in person July 11.

He wanted to know how she found out about Pullins. She told him that it was Pullins' former English teacher, JoAnn Abate, who called Dewey to ask her to write a story hoping the community would assist the 18-year-old with her financial needs.

Dewey not only wrote the story, but she also organized a community-wide baby shower and took Pullins on a shopping spree to Target in Westland.

Target allowed Pullins to purchase up to $200 worth of baby items.

Goodman also asked Dewey if she has hope for Pullins' survival. She said she believes there is more than just hope and that another miracle is right around the corner.

The Current Affair interview took place at the Michigan Community Newspaper office, 35540 Michigan Ave., in Wayne. Dewey said the experience of being on the other side of the interview was enjoyable.

"I especially enjoyed it because of the content of the interview," Dewey said.

"Helping someone like Loretta is a reward in itself. My mother always reminds me that the greatest gift in life is to help those who cannot help themselves.

"Loretta is a very courageous young woman who has a lot to offer her daughter."

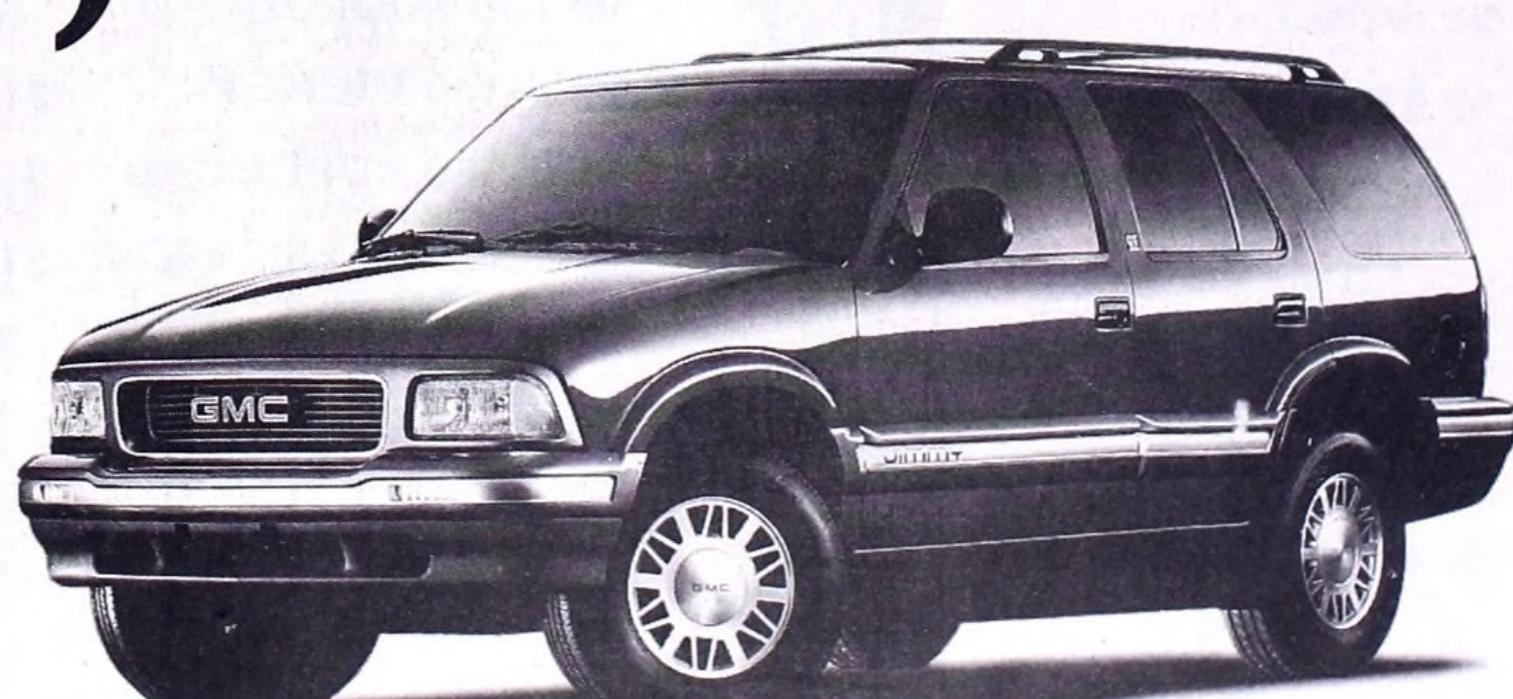

The interview with Dewey is expected to appear on Current Affair tonight at 6 p.m. on channel 62 CBS.

Financially Speaking, "It's Survival of the Fittest."

Inkster resident beams up as Lt. Howareya in Star Wreck

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

She's boldly going where no man or woman has gone before.

Inkster resident Franchie Joy has beamed up to the Star Wreck: The Ghan Saga enterprise at the Gem Theater.

Joy beat out more than 100 other hopefuls for the acting role as Lt. Howareya. Star Wreck is an "enterprising" sci fi comedy adventure re-telling the classic Star Trek episode Space Seed (1967) and Star Trek II, The Wrath of Khan movie 1982.

In this space adventure on stage, Captain Jerk will meet up with the Con of all Khans from the 20th Century. He and his crew will find themselves caught between a moon rock and a hard planet.

Joy said being a part of this production is like going on a non-stop roller coaster ride where all you do is laugh all day.

"This is a lot of fun," said Joy. "Before I got this role, I really wasn't a big Star Trek fan. I've seen the original series. But, after doing this, I'm hooked. I've had such a ball."

Ironically, the Romulus High School graduate did not start out her performing career as an actress. Her first love was singing.

"I only started acting about five years ago," said Joy. "I consider myself first a singer. No one was paying me to sing so I figured I had to do something else."

The 5 foot, 90 pound actress does have a small singing role in Star Wreck. She will belt out Proud Mary near the middle of the production.

She said most of her life she has enjoyed singing Motown songs and admires Stevie Wonder's music.

"Even as a kid I was singing Motown," said Joy. "Growing up my whole family was kind of corny and hammy in the sense that we all liked to act and sing.

"I do remember, however, in third or fourth grade my teacher let me get up in front of the class and sing. It was one of the best times I ever had. I knew then that I would pursue a career in music."

Joy started writing her own songs approximately seven years ago. She performs at mostly private parties. Her first single she created, Take Me Back in 1993, is a song about a girl who played around a lot and is kind of cold hearted and then the tables were turned on her.

"That's not autobiographical," said Joy. "The other song I wrote which does represent a personal moment in my life is called What Good Is That Man which is also the first song I wrote."

Joy said when she writes a song, she doesn't sit down and compose it. She writes it as it comes.

"I could be in the car or walking," said Joy. "I keep a tape recorder around."

What would this Inkster resident like to do in the near future with her acting and singing talent?

"I don't know," said Joy. "I don't really have a goal. I just want to have fun and hopefully make a living at it."

When looking at her acting credits, it looks as if Joy has already started a solid career for herself in acting. Her previous experience includes: Tessa in The Incorporated, a feature film; various roles in Storybuilders-an improvisational troupe; Beauty in Hudson's Christmas play; Egyptian princess in Zoo Boo; Tina in Hudson's Easter play; Puss in Hudson's Christmas play; Spruce/Candlewick in Pinocchio; March Hare in The Mad Hatter; various roles in the Brainstormers; Dorothy in The Wizard of Oz; and Hitwoman in Murder Mystery Train.

"What I really enjoy most about acting is the improvisational stuff because I can do all kinds of things and do it as it comes," said Joy.

With Star Wreck, Joy said she heard about it on the Actor's Hotline and decided to audition.

"I'm glad I did because this is the most fun I have had in a long time," Joy said.

Star Wreck is playing now through Aug. 12 at the Gem Theatre. Tickets are on sale at box office or any Ticketmaster outlet. For show times call 313-963-9800.

Reporter takes 'fantasy' drag racing adventure

By HEATHER NEEDHAM
MCN Staff Writer

The press release starts: "Have you ever fantasized about driving your vehicle 100 mph, jump six feet high, and land without injury to yourself or your vehicle?"

At the VIP day for the Seventh Annual Great Northern Challenge VIP Day, reporters got a chance to experience this excitement first-hand. A journalist's curiosity cannot be satisfied through mere observation. One must experience such excitement first-hand in order to write about it.

The day's events took place at the Milan International Dragway on Friday. Exhaust fumes and dirt polluted the air. One could barely hear through the roaring engines of the specially-modified pick-up trucks used for the stunts. For those who make their living by racing these trucks and doing the stunts, this was heaven.

As I suited up for the adventure, I knew there was no turning back. I pulled on my red jump suit, fire-proof socks, and helmet and knew that if I was going to die, at least I'd be having fun. My driver was 19-year-old Robin Schultz, a female college student who races these trucks on the side. She has been driving these trucks since she got her driver's license three years ago. She was bitten by the racing bug because her father drove, too.

She assured me she would be careful and that there was nothing to be afraid of.

As one crew worker said, "You're safer out there than on the road."

Schultz is cut out for racing. She said she has always been competitive, and loves to win. Her calm, level-headed demeanor will be a definite asset should she continue to pursue off-road truck racing.

We looped the track four times. I was a little disappointed that we weren't going faster after I realized how much fun it was. Sure, it was a little uncomfortable inhaling and swallowing all the dirt from the track, but it was still fun. I could feel every bump and curve acutely. I even let "You're safer out there than on the road.

- crew worker

out little shrieks as if I were on a roller coaster. All my utterances were stifled by the roar of the engine.

After the ride was over, I learned that those trucks typically hit speeds of 100 mph out on the track. Schultz only hit about 70 mph, or typical rush-hour speed, but I could understand why. If I was a truck racer and I had a paranoid journalist sitting in my passenger seat, I would be extra careful too. After all, if the journalist is killed, then who will be on the scene to write about the fatality?

Underneath her racing jump suit, Schultz is just a typical college student trying to support herself. She works as a cashier and lives in Kenosha, Wisc.

About racing, she said "I love the competition--the smell of victory. I've always been competitive."

While I made the rounds of the track before my big ride, I met Ivan "Ironman" Stewart, the first name in off-road truck racing. When I saw him, I could easily understand how he got his name. He was about 6 feet tall, blonde and muscular. He looked as though he were made from iron. All solid, metal, and sturdy.

"Ironman's" main claim to fame is his success in the Baja 500 and 1000 races in Mexico, where he rode solo. Riding solo might not seem like a big deal until one learns that the route is all dirt, desolate, and in the desert. If you got hurt, you had no one to turn to. If you wiped out, it might be days before anyone found you.

"Ironman" first did this successfully in 1975, winning $500. He has never been a man to shy away from challenges, in fact, he thrives on them. He continues to race solo.

When asked about whether all this danger was worth the risk to his life, he said, "You can get killed walking across the street. We learn a lot about safety." He added that racing is a "calculated risk."

As a child, "Ironman" always enjoyed competing. "I've always been competitive," he said. "I love the thrills--the smell of fuel, the fans, the sponsors."

Public Communications representative Robert Guenther was like a kid in a candy store.

"It's really intense doing this kind of thing," he said as he walked around, talking to the drivers and talking about the trucks.

Major auto companies such as Chrysler and Ford typically use tracks such as the one in Milan to test their trucks. The off-road track in Milan is one of only two in the nation.

Travelers find events in the Upper Peninsula

Vacationers - many from Western Wayne County - find the Upper Peninsula of Michigan a prime vacation area.

A parade of summer events, with enough activities to keep visitors busy for a week or more, are planned in the Upper Peninsula.

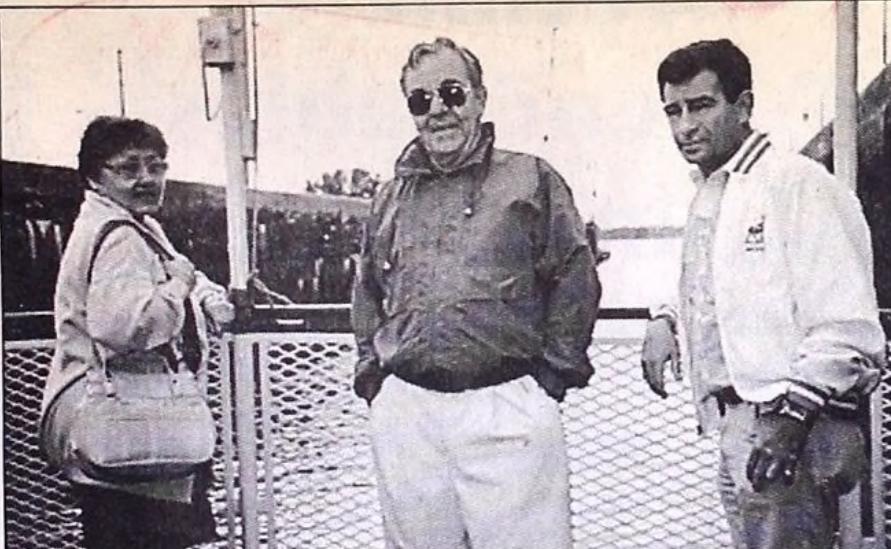

Featuring many rivers, including more than 12,000 miles of trout streams and more than 150 waterfalls, the Upper Peninsula deserves the designation of Water Wonderland.

Along these lakes and rivers, visitors join Upper Peninsula residents in fishing, boating, canoeing, rafting, camping, and sight-seeing, enjoying the clean waters and clean air.

At Sault Ste. Marie, visitors join the parade of waters when they board the Soo Locks Boat Tours for the trip through the Soo Canal. Others watch from the spectator stands alongside the Locks. They can sample the past on board the Museum Ship Valley Camp or take a ferry to Mackinac Island. Other water opportunities include Pictured Rocks Boat Tours along the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore at Munising Bay where visitors can enjoy views of shipwrecks from a glass-bottomed tour boat.

In Marquette Country, join a

Spectacular scenery

Natural beauty highlighted in waterfall from Mother Nature

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Although not as breath-taking as Niagara, the scenery surrounding Tahquamenon Falls provides it with a unique charm.

The upper falls has a drop of nearly 50 feet and is 200 feet across, and the lower falls -- four miles downstream -- is smaller in size but equal in beauty.

The Tahquamenon River, which empties into Lake Superior, drains hundreds of acres of the Tahquamenon Swamp, meandering some 70 miles until it widens to 200 feet at the falls.

Students of poetry will recall Longfellow's Hiawatha, based on the Tahquamenon River setting. The river was a major means of transportation for the native Americans and the fish - trout, bass and walleyes - provided them with food.

From June 15 through early October, the Toonerville Trolley and Hiawatha Riverboat convey tourists through the wooded countryside to the falls. Tourists first ride the train, and then are transferred to a boat to complete their journey to the falls.

The trip begins at 10:30 a.m. and ends at approximately 5 p.m. Along the way, tourists can usually get a glimpse of a

No ties to militia, says state director

No ties exist between the state Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan Militia, according to the DNR director.

Responding to recent statements by the commander of the paramilitary Michigan Militia, that an agreement has been forged whereby the DNR would train militia members to fight forest fires, DNR Director Roland Harms said today that no such agreement exists, and none will be entered into.

"The DNR deeply appreciates sincere motivations of individual citizens who offer to help in fighting wildfires," Harms said.

Newly elected militia commander Lynn Jon Van Huizen has stated that he has forged an agreement between the militia and the DNR to train militia members to help fight forest fires, in an attempt to improve the militia's public image.

few deer along the waterway and, perhaps, a bear.

Snacks and beverages are available on board the boat, and the operators don't seem to mind if you bring a small cooler along with your picnic supplies.

On a trip earlier this month, the writer saw a bear cub along the side of the railroad tracks and two deer near the river. Many water fowl and small animals also can be sighted along the way.

The trip is a popular one in the early fall when tourists come to see the fall color changes, along with viewing the falls.

The wilderness tour began operations in 1927 on a section of old logging rails, and a narrow gauge railroad track was built the following year. An early passenger dubbed the train "Toonerville Trolley" after a cartoon strip, and a boat, The Tahquamenon, carried passengers on an eight-hour trip.

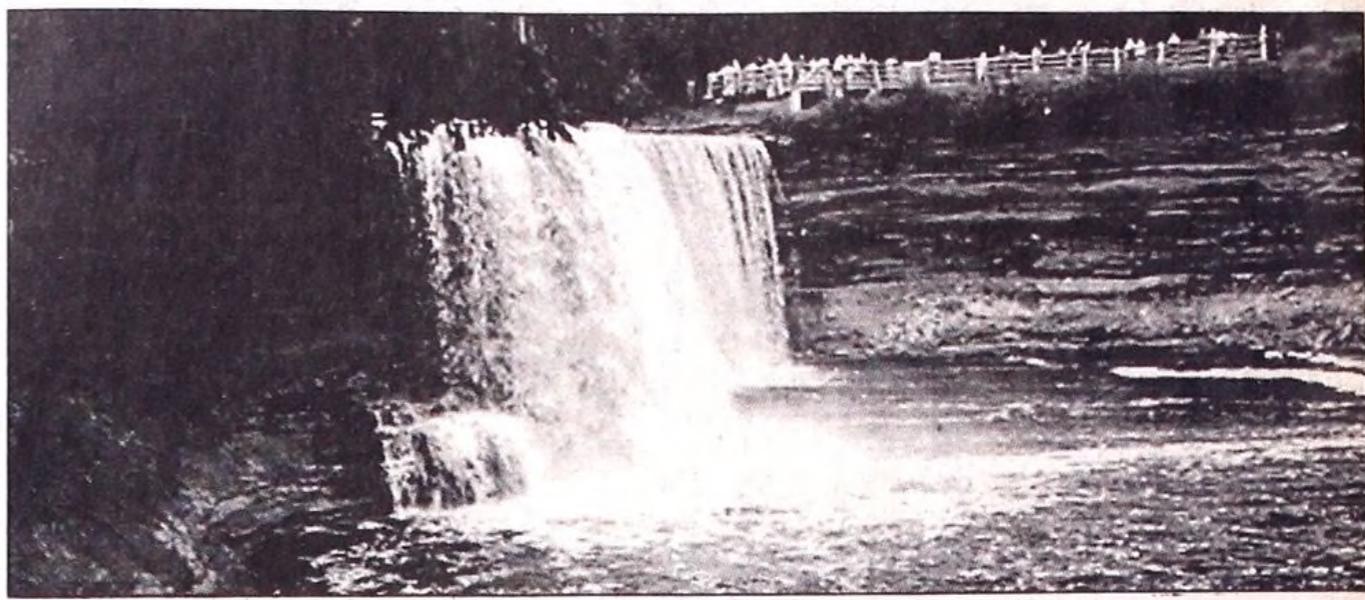

In the early 1930s, a larger boat built was built, and then replaced in 1964 with the "Hiawatha," the 250-seat boat which is currently in use.

Visitors who want to hike into the area can use either the North Country Trail and the Fox River Trail.

The North Country Trail, which will someday connect Maine and North Dakota, winds through the Upper Peninsula. From Grand Marais, the trail passes the mouth of the Tahquamenon River, then turns east to the Two-Headed River, south to Betsey Lake, crosses County Road 500 and goes into the Tahquamenon State Park where it merges with the Natural Areas Pathways.

The Fox River Pathway starts at the Seney Township campground on the Fox River, which is a take-out point for a lot of canoe trips. The trail is 27.5 miles long, and is only lightly traveled. At the end of the trail, hikers are four miles away by road from Twelve Mile Beach in the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore.

Visitors have a good view of the upper level of the Tahquamenon Falls from the riverbank. MCN photo by Joan Dyer-Zinner

Area residents offer summer time food tips to take heat off cooking

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Special Writer

When the temperature rises, area cooks look for ways to keep the heat out of the kitchen -- and still provide tasty, nutritious meals.

Several Western Wayne County residents, whose recipes appear in the Huron Valley Conservation Association-sponsored cookbook, provided their favorite summer recipes and shared some summer meal ideas.

Smashing Summer Squash

Joann Howell

2 pound or 6 cups sliced squash (yellow or green); 1 carrot, grated; 1 small onion, grated; 1 can cream soup (mushroom or chicken); 1 cup sour cream; 1/2 cup melted margarine; 1 (8 oz) package stuffing mix.

Cook squash in salted boiling water for 5 minutes, then drain. Combine soup with sour cream. Stir in carrots, onion, and squash. Combine margarine and stuffing. Spread 1/2 of stuffing mixture in bottom of 12 x 7 1/2 inch buttered baking dish. Spoon vegetable mixture on top and sprinkle with remaining stuffing over vegetables. Bake at 350 Degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

Joann Howell is the proprietor of Antiques on Main Street, and her cooking and baking is "right up to date," according to those who have sampled her specialties.

"My favorite summer foods are barbecued ribs and corn on the cob," said Barber, who also enjoys a BLT, bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich during the summer months.

$2 million success Auto theft task force recovers stolen vehicles

During 1994, more than $2 million of stolen vehicles and parts were recovered by an anti-auto theft consortium.

In addition, 262 stolen vehicles were recovered, according to Lt. Sandra Miller, commanding officer of the Western Wayne Narcotics and Western Wayne Auto Theft Elimination Effort (WWATEE).

Serving on the WWATEE board of directors are Sumpter Township Police Chief Clinton Brown, vice chairman; Canton Township Public Safety Director John Santomarco, project director; Inkster Police Chief Terry Colwell and Van Buren Township Public Safety Director Mark Perkins, board members.

Other members of the board are Chairperson Chip Snider, Northville Township, and board members Inspector James Arthur of Detroit, Captain James Gage of the Michigan State Police and Commander John Walker of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

WWATEE was formed on May 1, 1987, through a one-year grant funded by the Automobile Theft Prevention Authority. Due to the success of the unit and the continuing need for auto theft investigative services, the original grant has been extended through succeeding years.

The consortium will be the recipient of nearly three quarters of a million dollars in grant monies during 1995.

The main goal of this program is to detect, investigate, apprehend, and prosecute individuals and groups who commit auto theft related crimes that impact on western Wayne County. Emphasis is placed on organized groups, particularly chop shops. Auto theft investigation and surveillance services are available to all communities, but priority is given to those agencies which contribute personnel to the effort.

During 1994, the task force was comprised of officers from Inkster, Northville Township, Sumpter Township, Van Buren Township, the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, and the Michigan State Police.

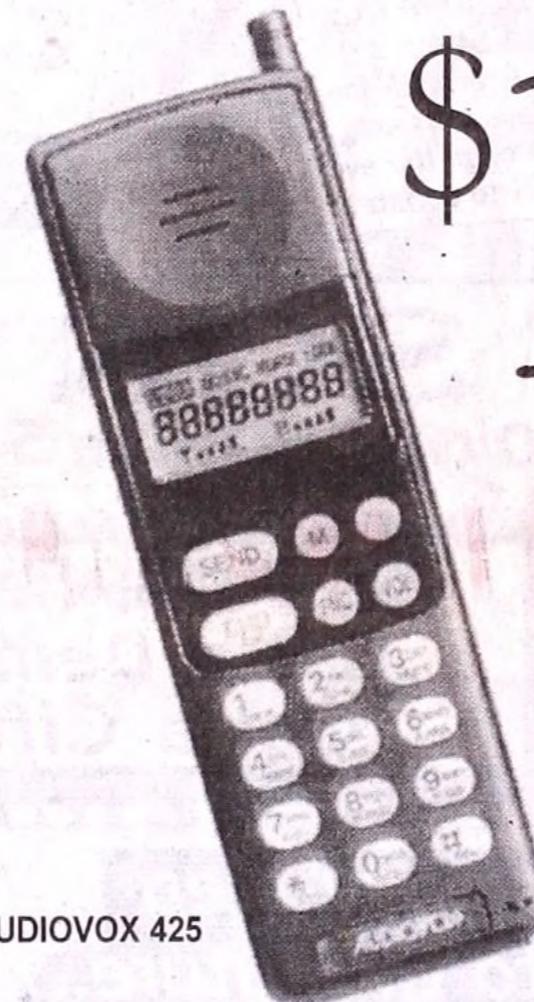

Canton Township Police Department has sponsored and housed the project since its inception.

Local residents star in Secret Garden production

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

An off-Broadway production of The Secret Garden is now on stage at the Troy Community Center featuring many residents from western Wayne County.

The Troy Players are presenting Garden now through July 29. Westland resident Doug Noel portrays the character Fakir, an Indian mystic, and Canton Township resident Parker Plague has the role of Parker Craven.

Both local residents have performed in many productions previous to their roles in Garden. Noel's credits included South Pacific, Fiddler on the Roof, Night of Jan. 16, Out of Sight, and Out of Murder.

"I've been acting for many years, and I really enjoy it," said Noel. "My first production was Music Man. I was really shy when I was younger. In fact, you had to force me to sing when I was in junior high school."

Ever since Noel took his first bow before a live audience, he said acting became his passion.

"It's such a wonderful feeling to become someone else and try to relay that to the audience," Noel said. "I think the best part about theater is the immediate response you get from the audience. I hope to do this for many more years."

Secret has become a special production not only because Noel has landed a very challenging role, but also due to the fact that his son, Jason, is the stage manager for the show.

"It's fun when you get to

My first production was 'Music Man'. I was really shy when I was younger. In fact, you had to force me to sing when I was in junior high school.

- Doug Noel

work with your family," said Noel. "Jason has a lot of talent, and it's a pleasure to be with him on this production."

What does Noel hope to do in the future with his acting?

"I would like to go as far as I can," Noel said. "But, I know you have to keep the day job as you are trying to reach your goals."

Plague is a 10-year-old fifth grader in Canton. His stage credits include: Tosca, The Thibans, The Music Man, Cinderella, Hello Dolly and Grapes of Wrath.

I really like acting. I especially like meeting new people.

- Parker Plague

How long has this talented youth been acting?

"Practically half my life," said Plague. "I really like acting. I especially like meeting new people."

Plague made a very big sacrifice for his role as Colin Craven. When he appeared for auditions for the show, his hair was down to his shoulders.

His mother, Corinne Fine, said she was approached by the show producers who told her they would hire her son if he cut his hair for the part.

"It was a big sacrifice, but he did it," said Fine.

Fine said her son has ignited the acting bug for the whole family.

"In the beginning, when we would go on family trips, Parker would always want to play a part in the car," Fine said. "He would take on all different characters. I knew then he had the talent for the stage."

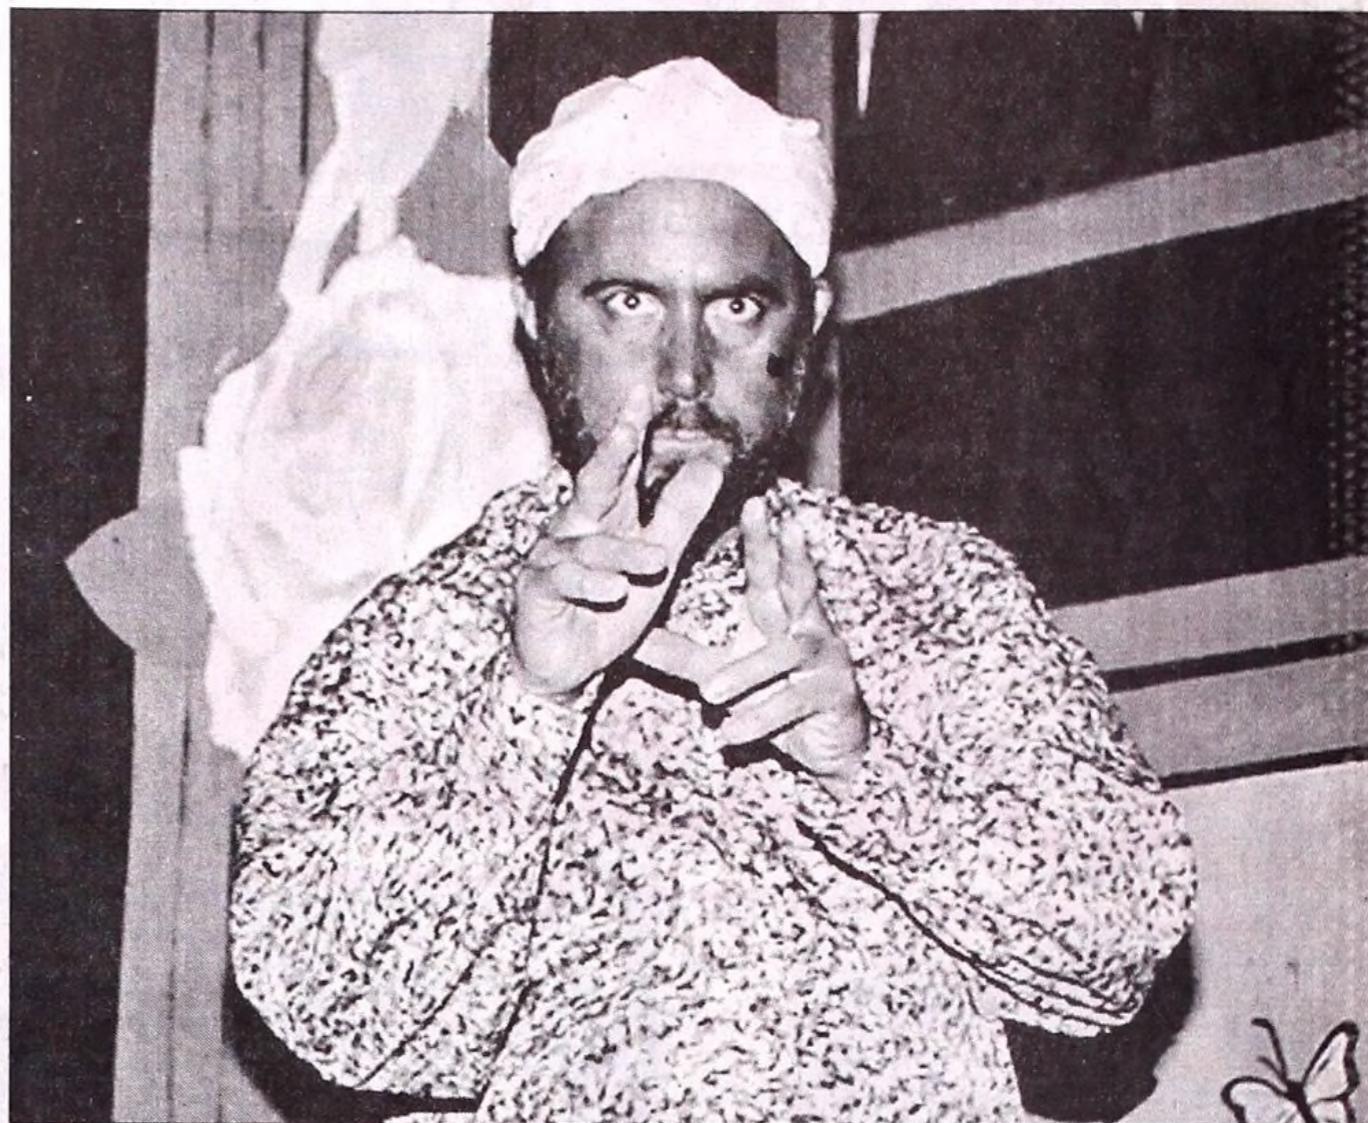

Plague's father, Kerry Plague, assisted with building the set for Garden. His younger sister, Lauracindy, is currently an actress in Cheaper By The Dozen.

"This is something that we all enjoy, and it really brings us closer together as a family," said Fine.

Tickets for The Secret Garden are now on sale at the Troy Community Center. Cost is $10 for adults and $9 for seniors and students. Show time is 8 p.m. except for Sunday which is 2 p.m.

For more information call 810-879-1285.

Program excellence

Family service organization receives outstanding award

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKIE
MCN Staff Writer

Alternative Intervention Method (AIM), a family service program, recently received the Richard F. Huegli Award for Program Excellence at the annual United Community Services (UCS) meeting.

AIM is a juvenile delinquency diversion and treatment program based in Westland, that accepts clients through referrals from the court system, police and youth assistance program of Westland. In its seventh year of operation, AIM offers youths and families a second chance at reorganizing their lives after repeated juvenile crime or delinquency problems.

The Huegli Award has been given each year since 1988 by UCS to a current program of any public or private non-profit organization operating in the Wayne, Oakland or Macomb counties. AIM received a $1,000 award from the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan.

AIM was created in 1989 to respond to the increasing juvenile delinquency problems in Wayne County. The core services of AIM are family-focused and include home-based counseling, behavioral contracting, parenting courses, life skills groups, community work service and a recreational component.

Statistics now show that AIM is successful. Out of 331 families who have completed AIM since its inception, 78 percent have not had further contact with the juvenile court system. A follow-up system was developed to measure recidivism, accomplished by a record check that takes place six months after completion of the program. Subsequent checks occur at 12, 18 and 24 months. Success is only measured if the clients lack further contact with the juvenile justice system.

"Evidence suggest that family functioning is often a factor in many delinquency cases. AIM's emphasis on helping the entire family is what makes it so successful," said AIM Program Manager Jim Thomas.

AIM's service area includes Wayne, Westland, Canton, Ecorse, Garden City, Inkster, Lincoln Park, Livonia, Plymouth, Redford, River Rouge, Riverview, Romulus, Southgate, Trenton, Wyandotte and Detroit Police Precincts 3, 4, 8, 10 and 12.

This isn't the first time a Family Service program has received the Huegli Award. The agency's Parent-Infant Beginnings (PIB) program won the award of its kind in 1988. PIB, celebrating its 10th anniversary this year, offers expectant parents volunteer mentors and assessment.

nized auto theft groups do not confine themselves to one community any more than do drug traffickers. Auto thieves also operate throughout the Detroit metropolitan area, necessitating a multi-jurisdictional response.

Compounding the problem is that local agencies rarely have sufficient resources available to independently address a property type crime. Due to their volatile nature, drugs, and violent crime must receive priority response from police administrators.

Recognizing that motor vehicles are the second most expensive items that people will ever buy and own, it is important that ownership rights be protected. Theft of an automobile is a very personal and traumatic experience for the victim. With the introduction of "carjackings," it has also become increasingly dangerous.

The "chop shop," or stripping of stolen vehicles for a black market parts distribution network, continues to be a major factor contributing to Michigan's auto theft problem. Abandoned and residential garages that can easily conceal dismantled cars appear to be a choice locations to operate these chop shops and "retag" rings. Many of these vehicles receive new and "legitimate" identities which are difficult for the average patrol officer to detect.

Cars are also stolen as "quick strips" for the cash value of unidentifiable, easily disposable parts such as tires, radios, and rear window assemblies.

Dealerships, shopping malls, and apartment and airport hotel complexes are attractive marketplaces for these types of thefts.

Van Buren Township/Detroit
In June of 1994, WWATEE received information through the HEAT Tipline of suspicious activity by an automotive parts customer at an area business. The suspect was buying severely damaged newer model luxury vehicles from a local salvage yard. The suspect's primary concern was that the vehicles had "clear" rather than "salvage-branded" titles. Because the suspect then transferred ownership of the vehicles into his name through the "Quick Title" process in Lansing, but never took the actual physical delivery of the vehicles themselves, officers suspected a potential insurance fraud scheme.

Over the next several months, officers carefully monitored all titling and financial activity related to these vehicles.

Altogether, the suspect purchased 40 extensively damaged vehicles from the salvage yard, paying the business a total of $266,781. Shortly thereafter, information was received that the ownership of each vehicle was once again being transferred. The suspect appeared to be "selling" the vehicles to a few select car dealerships. The vehicles were then "bought" by numerous individuals who were known associates of the suspect, while the physical shells remained at the salvage yard, each vehicle was resold, financed, and insured. In August, the first "phantom" vehicle was reported stolen. The scheme was complete, as the fraud ring had already received nearly three quarters of a million dollars in financing prior to submitting any fraudulent insurance claims.

WWATEE investigators then prepared 33 search warrants and organized 43 law enforcement officers from 10 agencies into teams of two in order to execute the warrants, seize documentation evidence, and interview over 20 suspects. Searches were concluded in 15 cities through the metropolitan area, including the city of Detroit. Three individuals, including the suspected kingpin, were arrested on felony charges of obtaining money under false pretenses over $100.

While the case investigation continues, the volume of proof grows. Over 3000 pieces of evidence were seized. The case documentation fills six volumes of books. Evidence has been uncovered implicating employees at two well known car dealerships, insurance agents, and three current law enforcement officers. At least 30 additional arrests are anticipated. The victim insurance and finance companies are requesting restitution of nearly one million dollars in losses.

Romulus/Detroit

A fake "yard release" form started an investigator from WWATEE on the trail of a 1992 Chevrolet Yukon which was assembled with stolen parts. The suspect had dealt with Tech-Cor of Romulus on many occasions and knew what a valid yard release form looked like. He then drafted a bogus release for a wrecked 1994 Blazer on his home computer. He later enlisted a friend to act as a middleman to get the 1994 vehicle out of Tech-Cor's impound yard. Once the totaled 1994 Blazer was dropped on a street corner in Detroit, the suspect went to work taking parts off of at least three different Chevrolet Blazers to make one 1992 Chevrolet Yukon with 16,000 miles on it. Once the WWATEE investigator found and questioned the suspect's friend, the pieces fell into place. The suspect, who runs an auto recovery and salvage yard in Detroit, had a new Chevrolet Blazer frame sitting in his yard.

Since the identification numbers on the frame were missing, he decided to build a whole truck from stolen parts. The defendant eventually pled guilty in Wayne County. He subsequently lost a major insurance company contract to scrap out salvage vehicles, lost "his" Yukon, and will more than likely lose his license to deal in auto recovery and second parts.

Huron Township

Huron Township Police Department requested assistance with the identification of vehicles found in the garage of a residence on Sibley Road. Officers had discovered these vehicles when the fire department responded to a fire at the residence which had caused extensive damage.

One of the vehicles found in the garage was a 1993 Ford Ranger pickup with the public VIN plate missing. The second vehicle was a 1992 Mazda/Ford Explorer-Navajo, with a production number of 00001.

Investigators eventually obtained a two count warrant for receiving and concealing stolen property over $100. The suspect, a Dearborn resident, had mistakenly thought his cache would be well hidden in such a rural area.

Apparently taking its cue from the weather that has dominated these parts lately, red-hot Jimmies erupted for six runs in each of the first and third innings to melt under pressure Gekle's, 22-9, to capture the 19th annual Leonard J. Anderson Invitational Softball Tournament staged over the weekend in the city of Wayne.

With temperatures wooing the 90-degree mark all three days of the tournament, a cool-playing Jimmies put the heat on 15 other highly-respected and notable teams to win the prestigious tournament.

The tournament is named for Patrolman Anderson, killed in 1974 investigating a report of a domestic violence. Anderson is the only Wayne police officer ever fatally wounded in the line of duty in the city of Wayne.

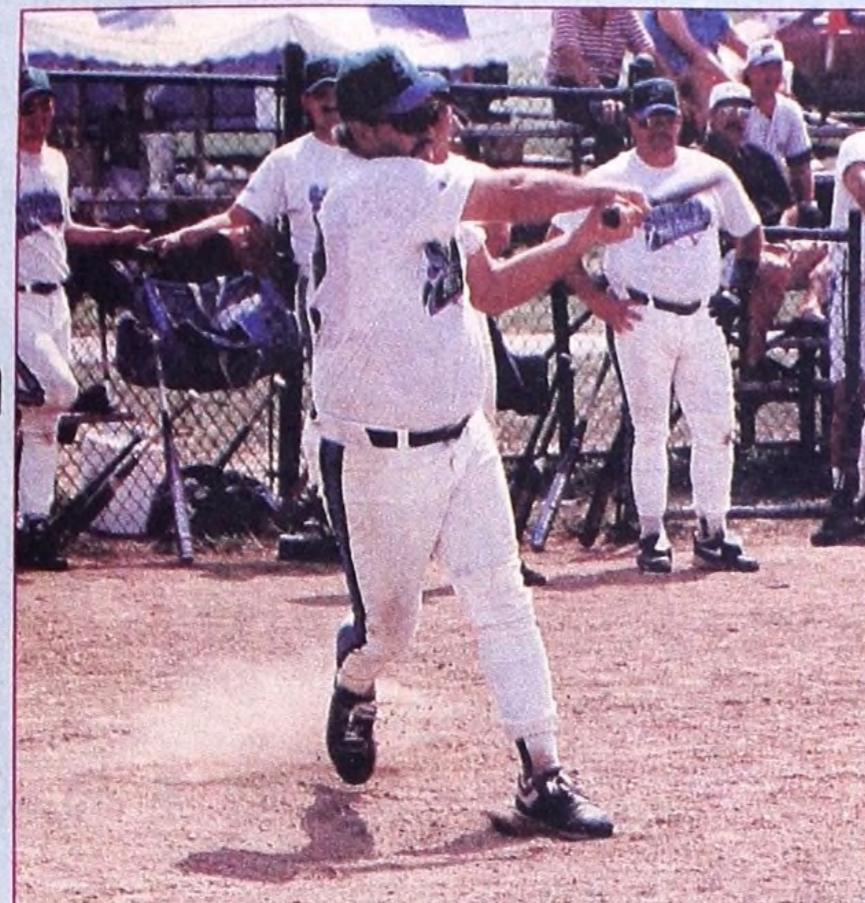

"It was an excellent tournament," said tournament manager Larry Quartuccio, whose 1995 edition, he says, could be his last.

Quartuccio organized the tournament in 1974 "to pay tribute to the patrolman who was an outstanding athlete and person."

Quartuccio, a Wayne native who also happens to work for an airline, has been transferred to Kentucky. He and his family area in the midst of packing and leaving for their adopted state.

And now back to the tournament.

Gekle drew first blood against Jimmies as Josh Simon hammered his first of two home runs off of winning pitcher Ken Perpich to lift the finalist to an early 2-0 first-inning lead.

But Jimmies' came back with vengeance in their half of that frame. They scored six times to take a 6-2 lead as Jeff Ehrenberg, Mark Matchula, Billy Gill and Bob Stewart led the assault.

Gekle didn't buckle under the initial assault. They roared back and scored six to go ahead, 8-6. But their lead was short-lived. The champs retaliated with five runs in the second to go ahead for good. They also tallied six more runs in the third, then went on to seal the victory with three and two runs in the final two innings.

Jimmies collected 19 hits, six of those long balls to turn back Gekle and win the invitational.

Matchula and Gill each accounted for two round-trippers and Gill also made his three hits count for five runs batted in. Matchula finished with four RBIs. Ehrenberg, named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, was a triple shy of hitting for the cycle. He finished with three RBIs in the championship bout and also had a homer, double, and single for the evening.

Bob Stewart chipped in with two hits and he also slammed a homer.

Jeff Greenberg won the special Home Run Trophy as he drilled 10 for the three-day series. The Home Run Derby prize went to Todd Wallace as he counted four HRs in five attempts. The series highest batting average was owned by John Sampson, who finished with an incredible .923.

The all-tournament, all-star lineup included four players from Jimmies: Roger Breeding, Bill Gill, Mark Matchula and John Simpson; the tournament's runnerup team - Gekle - had three spots on the team. They went to Todd Reynolds, Rob Gekle, and Josh Simon. Also named to the all-tournament team were Tom Lengel (J & K); Scott Nastally (J & K/Critter) and John Hacking and Edward Karas from Superior.

Leaving little room for speculation, Jimmies (pictured above) buried Gekle in the championship round, 22-9, to claim the 1995 Len Anderson Memorial Softball title. Jimmies, led by Jeff Ehrenberg, who was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, swept through the series encountering little resistance. The champs also placed four players on the all-tournament team. MCN photo by Ken Garner

Countdown begins to golf tourney

There are only nine days left to sign up for the 1995 City Championship Golf Tournament.

The tournament will be staged on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 5-6, on the challenging, redesigned Fellows Creek Golf Course. The 18-hole course is located at 2936 Lotz Road, east of the I-275 Expressway, about a half-mile north of Michigan Ave.

"We have not received the anticipated response we have expected," said John Rutter, Wayne Parks and Recreation Department official, one of the sponsors of the tournament. "I don't know what it is this year - whether we have not publicized it enough, or that the golfers who usually compete in this tournament have other commitments.

"But we are looking for more golfers," Rutter stressed.

The tournament is open to all male and female golfers residing in Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Inkster, Belleville, Van Buren, and Canton Township. Golfers will play 18-holes on the first day (Aug. 5) in foursomes set up by a committee.

However, in the final round, golfers will tee off according to the best first-round scores, Rutter said.

The foursomes and their tee-off times will be available at the Wayne and Westland parks and recreation department. And also a the golf course. The telephone number at the golf course is 728-1300.

Tony Gillman, of Fellows Creek, said on Monday that he has personally received phone calls "from people who are interested in golfing in this tournament."

"I handled a few calls myself," said Gillman, "and that one story apparently helped. This tournament has been very popular in the past."

Westland title trails end at state

With three of their four teams reaching the state playoffs, the city of Westland hoped that at least one of them would return home with a state championship.

It didn't happen.

All three of Westland's district champs - the Mustang All-Stars, the Pony and Colts were wiped out in state tournament competition staged on various diamonds around the state over the weekend.

Coach Tony Horning's Mustangs ran into trouble Friday at Walled Lake where they clashed with a determined Lakes club. With their ace, David Heitzenrater, on the mound, Westland lost a 9-5 decision in the first round.

The Mustangs then took on coach Dan Petry's North Farmington-West Bloomfield squad in the two-game elimination series and fell 12-11, knocking them out of title contention.

Heitzenrater also was charged with that setback.

Down 7-2 early in the ball game, the Westland staged a late rally that lifted them within a run of erasing the deficit.

Westland received an outstanding effort at the plate from Andrew Schellenford and Joe Cichowski, who each stroked two hits.

Westland got three solid innings of pitching from Tom Grosgrove who shut out his opponents and gave his teammates and opportunity to stage the comeback.

Westland received an outstanding effort at the plate from Andrew Schellenford and Joe Cichowski, who each stroked two hits.

The Westland Pony entry, coached by Dave Mackiewicz, traveled to Mt. Pleasant where they dropped their first-round game 15-3 to Grand Ledge. They also didn't have much success in the second game as Bay City clubbed Westland, 10-5, eliminating them from the playoffs.

The Westland Colts also lost their first two games at the state playoffs conducted in neighboring Garden City.

Domnique Whitner is on her way to San Jose.

The 10-year-old daughter of Areeda Quincy and Wesley Whitner earned a right to make the trip to California thanks to her track & field performances last week in Kentucky.

Because of traveling expenses, the family had some concerns about making the trip. However, after Domnique's mother asked for financial help from the Inkster Board of Education, Mayor Edward Bivens Jr. and the Inkster City Council, the officials apparently managed to put together a financial package that allowed the young athlete to compete in the 1995 Junior Olympics hosted by San Jose.

"We're really happy and proud that Domnique has been afforded a chance to compete in the Olympics," said the athlete's grandmother. "The city officials and the news-

Domnique and her parents were not at home on Monday. They were en route to California.

Domnique, a Baylor-Woodson Elementary School pupil, took up track only three months ago, according to her mother. She has outstanding potential and natural talent, her mother added.

At the Michigan Association Outdoors Championships, staged recently in the down-river community of Melvindale, Domnique finished fourth in the 200-meter dash (37.8) and came back and won a silver medal in the 400-meter dash (1:24).

Mike Sliger latched on to two homers and also a pair of singles, while teammate Craig Collins laced four hits and Roland Brassington added a single, two doubles and a homer for the losers.

With Kevin Wofford slamming a homer and single and driving home four runs, Superior outlasted Varsity, 18-15, in one of the preliminary games.

Bill Kostich had five RBIs on a homer and a pair of singles.

Jimmies exploded for 12 runs in a wild seventh to roll up a 38-28 victory over J & K. Charlie Thompson connected for three homers and a single and had four RBIs for Jimmies. Jeff Ehrenberg also blasted two HRs and had three RBIs and Rog Breeding ended the evening with six hits, three doubles and an equal number of singles as Ken Perpich got credit for the victory.

J & K's John Sampson had an incredible evening as he drove in seven runs with three homers and a single. Also hitting the long ball were Nestally, with two homers; Scott Hille, also a pair of roundtrippers, and Rubin Gonzales, who had three homers, two of those going for the distance.

The 19th annual Leonard J. Anderson softball tournament produced a lot of thrills and spills, and also an all-tournament team. Greenfield Village celebrates emancipation

African-American history comes to life with stories of courage and songs of freedom as Greenfield Village presents "A Celebration of Emancipation" on Aug. 5 and 6.

Highlighting Village structures and stories that explore the lives of African-American families, this special weekend focuses on the resourcefulness of African American men, women and children during times of slavery and freedom.

"All Americans are greatful for the freedom we enjoy, but for African-Americans, freedom has another meaning," said Dorita Smith, a member of the program planning team. "Emancipation celebrations have been an important tradition for more than a century among families, church groups and anywhere there's a sense of community."

Greenfield Village's special weekend event continues the tradition of inspiring and entertaining activities, including musical performances that reflect the richness of African American culture.

Detroit jazz legend Harold McKinney and his combo will explore the roots of this popular musical form with sound samplings of jazz through the years, and members of the renowned Brazeal Dennard Choral will raise their voices in song with performances of traditional spirituals and gospel music.

All Americans are greatful for the freedom we enjoy, but for African-Americans, freedom has another meaning.

Three original dramas created especially for performance at Greenfield Village will be presented at the sites that inspired the stories.

lemma," by Ann Eskridge.

The hopes, dreams, and fears of enslaved African-Americans are movingly expressed in "Hester's Di-

Hester, a plantation house servant, shares her thoughts as she struggles to keep her family together while facing an uncertain future. The Hermitage Slave Houses, moved to Greenfield Village from the site of a Georgia industrial plantation, provide the setting.

Kids can also listen as a storyteller relates tales from African-American history, and enjoy hands on activities including making paper puppets.

"A Celebration of Emancipation" is part of Greenfield Village's Summer Festival, which features performances, music, and hands on activities.

Admission to "A Celebration of Emancipation" and all special weekend programs is included with regular Village admission.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village is in Dearborn, 12 miles west of downtown Detroit. Directional signs are posted along routes I-75 and I-94, the Southfield Freeway (M-39), and Michigan Avenue (U.S. 12). Parking is free.

Residents react to ozone problems

As Southeast Michigan braces itself for another series of Ozone Action days, the folks at SEMCOG are encountering "fuel proof" alternatives to the traditional commute.

Excessive ozone is the air is thought to be a health hazard, and steps are being taken to reduce its levels in the atmosphere.

Ride sharing, telecommuting, and alternative work schedules can all help to reduce auto emissions which contribute to air quality problems according to Carol Bagazinski, senior planner for SEMCOG's commuter transportation program area.

"One way to help Southeast Michigan maintain its clean air status is by driving a little less. Car Pooling occasionally, particularly on Ozone Action days, helps clear the air. Fortunately, it also reduces congestion and saves money on gas and parking fees," Bagazinski said.

Commuters interested in locating a carpool or van pool may call SEMCOG's Ride Share hotline at (313) 963-RIDE.

Applicants may register for Ozone Action days only, or for the regular weekday commute. In either case, a match list of potential pooling mates can be made available almost immediately by phone, fax or mail.

Telecommuting is another alternative touted by SEMCOG officials which reduces auto related emissions.

"Telecommuting is an umbrella term which covers a host of alternatives to the traditional office setting, the most common of which is working at home when special projects or situations require it," according to Bagazinski.

Gaining increasing popularity nationwide, working at home allows employees to work at personal peak times and with fewer distractions than the office.

In addition to occasional work at home arrangements, telecommuting programs may include formal guidelines for people who work outside the office two or three days per week. Some local companies are doing away with office space altogether and are outfitting their staff with necessary tools to work at home full-time.

Alternative work schedules also aid in the fight to clear the air by allowing commuters to avoid peak period traffic thus reducing auto idle time.

Staggered work hour programs allowing employees flexibility in start/stop times but include required core hours, and compressed work week options allowing employees to work their usual 40 hours in four ten hour days with the fifth day off are both examples of alternative work schedules.

All SEMCOG commute assistance materials and services are provided free of charge to both individuals and businesses in the region. For more information, call SEMCOG at (313) 961-4266.

Open house

Fund raiser aids trauma center

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Special Writer

Car washing isn't their expertise, but the staff of J.B.'s Place rolled up their sleeves and cleaned cars to raise funds for the University of Michigan Trauma Burn Center.

John Bota's staff, customers and neighboring businesses worked together to raise $1,070 for the trauma center.

"I've done fund raisers for the burn center in the past, and I decided it was time to do one again," said Bota, who handed a check for $1,070 to Deborah Trombley, program assistant for the burn center program.

For Bota, the fund-raising effort was nothing new. He has hosted fund-raisers for many local charities and is the top contributor to the Belleville High School athletic department.

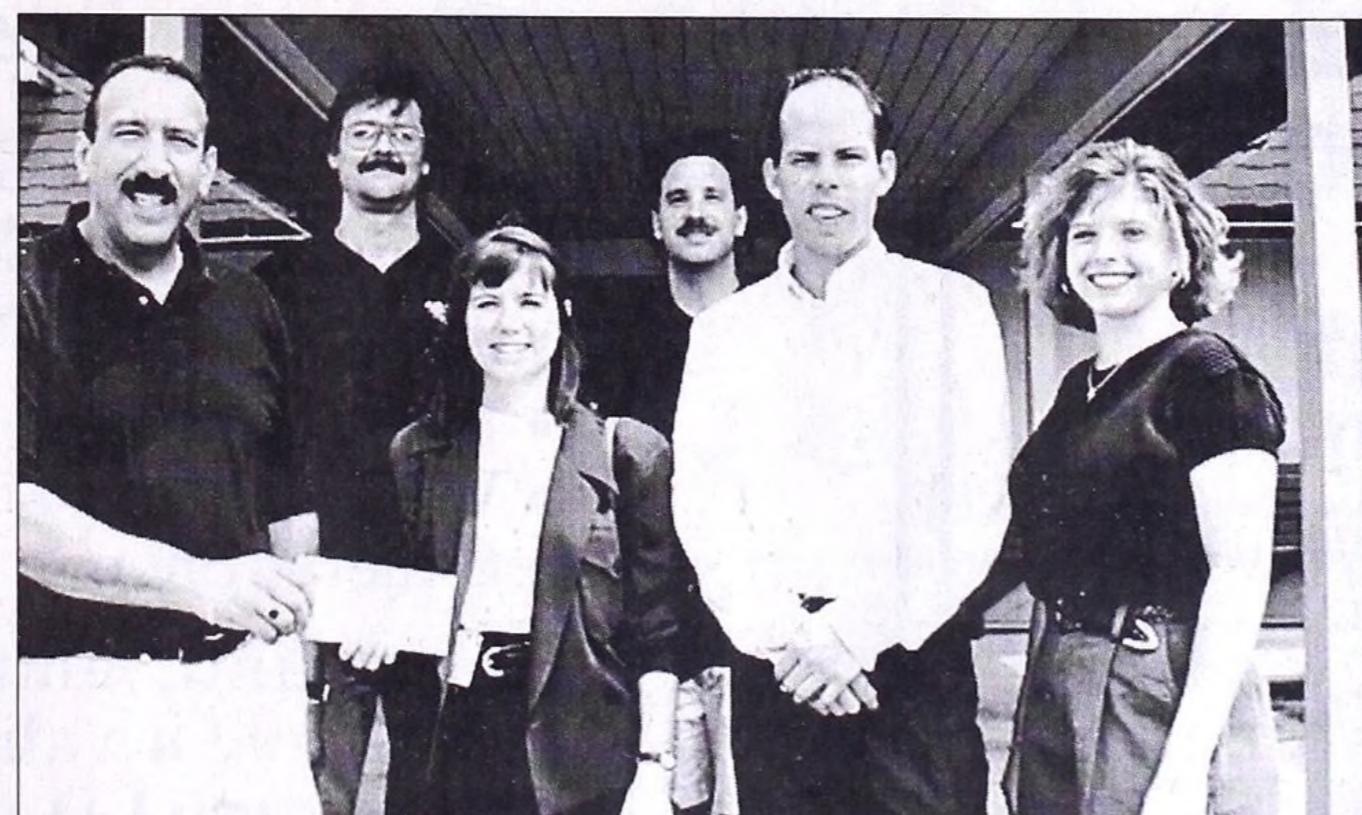

"Everyone pitched in. We got a great response from the community - a lot of support," Bota said. "And, we also got a lot of cooperation from the nearby businesses."

Participating in the fund-raiser were Todd Atchinson, Cyndi Darosa, Brad Howell, Jerry Jenkins, Carrie Ruble, Shelly Salemassi, Charles Wilson, Nicole Allen and Katie Polzen. Donations were given by Louise Leonard of Guys & Gals, Real Pizza, Belleville Barbecue and water for the car washing was provided by Brass Belle Restaurant.

Bota has also hosted fund-raising events for the Salvation Army, Goodfellow, the Lake Fest and the Belleville Band.

Knowing the critical need to help burn victims, Bota said he was pleased to have been able to sponsor a successful fund-raising event.

was originally founded in 1959 as the University of Michigan Burn Center - one of the first such centers in the United States.

It developed an international reputation for leadership in patient care and rehabilitation since its opening.

It became the Trauma Burn Center after adding the capability of caring for a wide variety of traumatic injuries, in addition to burns. The medical staff cares for people who suffer multiple injuries, and often life-threatening or limb-threatening injuries.

How quickly patients receive treatment can mean the difference between life and death or the chance of recovery, said a hospital spokesman. At the University of Michigan, medical specialists are available on-site 24 hours a day, and the trauma radio communications systems allows them to assemble the trauma team before the patient arrives.

The facility is verified as a Level 1 Adult Trauma Center and a Pediatric Regional Resource Center in Washtenaw County by the American College of Surgeons (ACS). Trauma centers offer all the specialized services, equipment and medical staff that are required to treat a variety of serious injuries.

Patients receive care from a team of specialized medical professionals, from admission through rehabilitation.

The University of Michigan's surgery, trauma and rehabilitation programs rank among the top in the country.

The trauma team for both adults and children includes:

trauma surgeons; occupational, respiratory, physical and speech therapists; dietitians and nutritionists; rehabilitation physicians; social workers, orthopedic surgeons, plastic surgeons, and neurosurgeons.

The Center's nursing staff is trained in trauma care with added experience in pediatrics, neurology, orthopedics, emergency care, burn care, labor and delivery, and psychiatric nursing.

Patients also benefit from the centralized operation. The trauma team comes to the Trauma Burn Center to provide medical care, so the patients are not moved around the hospital. One primary Trauma Burn Center nurse is assigned to each patient throughout treatment to ensure quality care is provided.

Teen needs donations to take educational trip

Seventeen-year-old Paul Olney refuses to give up on life, even though he feels it has given him some hard knocks.

Paul's father left home when he was only two years of age. About a decade later, Paul himself was removed from his home by Protective Services for about a year.

Paul had a few minor brushes with the law while outside his home, but luckily escaped being charged and thus never developed a juvenile record.

After returning home at age 15, Paul experienced more family problems but decided to stick it out until he reached the age of 17.

At that time, Paul moved in with friends as his family relations became strained. Remarkably since moving out, he admits, his relationship with his mother has improved.

Romulus Police Youth Officer Rose Cooper feels Paul could easily have fallen through the cracks in society's safety net in past years, by committing crimes or joining a youth gang to get attention.

But instead, Paul's dogged determination to succeed got him involved in school activities, including the Romulus Eagles football team, and lead to his getting a job.

Since he wasn't living at home, Cooper said, Paul felt he needed extra money to survive. But after working long hours, he found his school work beginning to suffer.

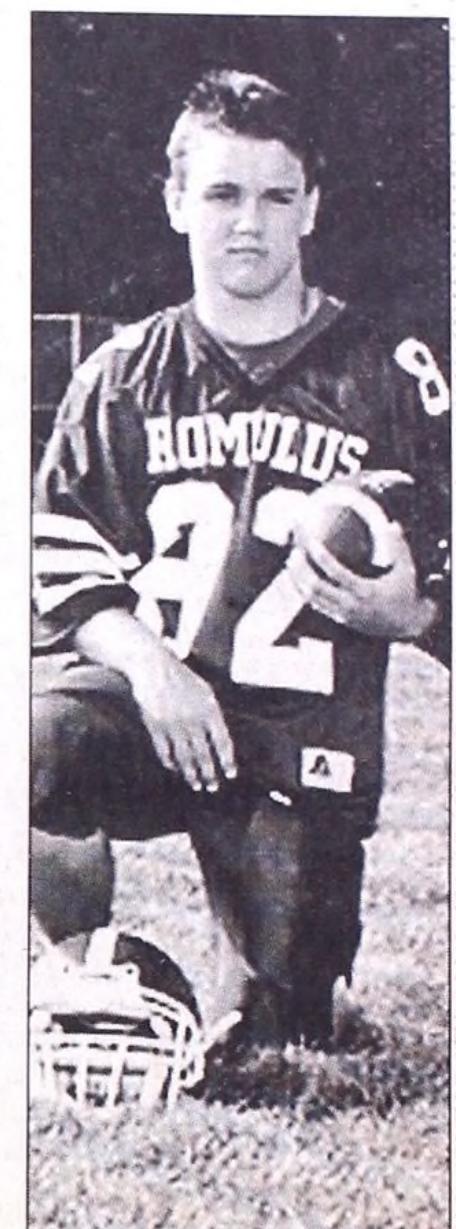

Unlike many youth of his age, Paul quit his job (not school) and decided to go to summer school to earn the needed credits to graduate.

Recently Cooper met Paul when he got involved in a Romulus High School student project with the Romulus Police Department, in which the classmates painted over gang graffiti about town.

Cooper proudly states that she is quite impressed with Paul's battle against heavy odds and speaks out on his behalf every chance that she gets.

Paul recently learned about the Student Travel Service Foundation, which arranges for students to travel abroad and live in different cultures, while attending schools overseas.

Paul passed the foundation's extensive screening for overseas applicants, STS Foundation area representative Mark Przygocki reported. The screening checks include investigations into his character.

Paul Olney

ter, citizenship, adaptability and grade level.

Paul now dreams of entering schools in Sweden for his 13th year in upper secondary schools, which will provide him with college credits.

He has been able to scrape together $500 from his past earnings to put down as a deposit on his dream.

But now Paul is facing a very quick deadline of next Tuesday in which he needs to raise $4,500 for the exchange program.

Cooper said that based on her five years experience as a youth officer, she feels comfortable joining Paul in his appeal for travel study funds.

She said checks should be made out to S.T.S. Foundation and dropped off at the Romulus Police Headquarters in care of Cooper.

Cooper reminds the public that if Paul does not obtain his needed $4,500 by next Tuesday, he will have to cancel his plans to travel to Sweden this fall.

In addition, Cooper reveals that S.T.S. Foundation is in need for local host families. The public can obtain additional information by calling Mark Przygocki at 313-291-9260.

Students need to work on problem area during

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Special Writer

South Middle School teacher Pat Richards reminds parents that summer time is a good time to keep student skills current or work on problem areas with an academic tutor.

Richards volunteers to coordinate a list of teachers willing to tutor.

"There is no such thing as a student who is a lost cause," Richards said.

Seventeen certified teachers in almost all subject areas are available for tutoring either in the child's home, the tutor's home, or some other location like a local library.

Parents can call the VBPS Administration Building (698-9123) for a list of tutors. Ask for Linda Chatzka, or the curriculum office.

For advice on selecting a tutor, including tips on how to interview a prospective tutor, and what parents should know when negotiating a fee, call Pat Richards at 313-483-6057.

Despite her recommendations that parents enlist the aid of tutors for students in academic trouble, Richards advises that parent remember the following: "No tutoring plan will work unless the student does."

During the summer, young children can lose a great deal of academic knowledge and skills gained during the school year, according to research studies. Math, spelling, and other language skills are areas particularly affected.

But by participating in some simple summertime arts education activities with children, parents can add fun to their children's summer while helping them retain knowledge and giving them a head start on the next school year.

Here are some suggestions that parents may use to help their children develop their skills during the summer vacation.

- Describing Favorite Summer Family Vacations through Drawing - Drawing can help children to learn math, language, and spelling skills and to express thoughts and ideas. Encourage your child to draw pictures of favorite summer vacation places and activities and then count different shapes, identify items, and describe scenes in the drawing.

- Making a Collage of Summer Activities - This activity assists children with classifying and organization skills. Create the collage by cutting pictures from colored paper, magazines, photos, and newspapers and pasting them onto paper. Older children can cut alphabet letters from magazines and spell out the names of games, toys, or summer foods. Have your child cut out and paste pictures of animals, people, cars, or other items, then count, add, and subtract the images to practice math skills. For example, paste all the blue cars in one column and all the red cars in another, and add the two together. Remember to praise all your child's efforts.

- Experiencing Summertime Adventures Through Reading and Improvisation - Reading aloud helps enhance vocabulary, spelling, and language skills. Select books with timely themes, such as summertime adventures, the ocean, or the outdoors, and read and discuss them with your child. Join your child in re-enacting the story, playing characters in the book. This activity builds language, vocabulary, and reading comprehension skills, and helps children learn how to order events. Using learn to count books when re-enacting a story also reinforces math concepts.

- Creating a Story About

Students learn shopping skills to build math talents

Carol Brown teaches student's the relevance of MEAP-required math skills, the old fashioned way - by using it!

She believes practical use of skills will help students excel in the future Michigan Education Assessment Program tests.

On Tuesday, Brown and seven of her third grade Rawsonville Elementary School students will tackle the aisles of Meijer to shop for breakfast and lunch for themselves and classmates. Armed only with coupons from the paper, students will have to add, subtract, multiply and divide their way through the gauntlet of costly temptations in order to arrive at the checkout with not only lots of healthy, tasty food, but an in-tact budget as well.

Students plan the meals on Thursday, checking their appetite's desire against a food pyramid that might daunt adults to live by. However, armed with a clear understanding of the perils of fats, calories, and food poisoning, students plan meals that emphasize fruits and vegetables, allow one serving of ham or bacon a week, and avoid mayonnaise for field trips without refrigerators.

Along the way, students are blending a new understanding that skills required to pass the MEAP tests are also required for living.

Students honored for academic excellence

Tara Williams.

Homemaker has fond memories of county fair

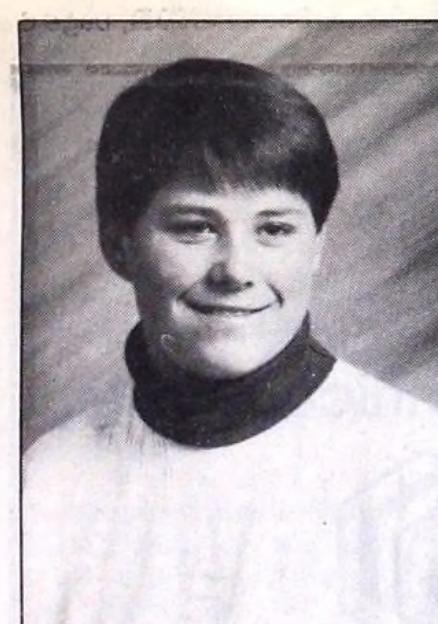

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Special Writer

Among the faces at the Wayne County Fair this year will be Laura Marie Symanns Polce of New Boston.

She will be participating in the silk ribbon embroidery, crazy quilt vests, pressed flowers, and canning events.

Her best memories of the fair were in about 1984 when she won her first ribbon and in 1994 when she won the title of Homemaker of the Year.

Some other hobbies include

gardening, antique collections, embroidery, and dog obedience with her sheep dog. Polce is also interested in the animal rights issue.

She was second vice president in the Huron Countryside Co-Op, and has spent two years coaching T-ball. Polce also restored the old farm house in which she grew up.

When asked what goals she has for herself, she replied, "I want to be the best wife, mother, daughter, and friend I can be. I would like to have another baby and live happily ever after."

Youth plans to exhibit pigeons

One of our local youths that you will see at the Wayne County Fair is Tom Zilka, 15, of Inkster Road in Romulus.

He is a ninth grader at Woodhaven High School.

He will be bringing homing pigeons, rollers, and fantails to exhibit at the July 25-30 fair.

His best memory is of all the friendly people.

One of his other hobbies is to compete in the marching band.

His goal in life is, "To try to do the best I can do."

Fair extends to Sunday

The 1995 Wayne County Fair has fun for the whole family.

The 49th Annual Wayne County Fair provides family fun and value, said a fair spokesman.

Cost is $6 per person from July 26 to 30, and includes all midway rides and entertainment on those days.

Senior Day is July 25. The Wayne County Fair hosts a wide variety of games and entertainment for seniors.

The following events have been scheduled:

- July 26 - Agriculture Day
- July 27 - Kids day, Wagon Wheel Pro rodeo
- July 28 - Mother Nature Day, Wagon Wheel Pro Rodeo Encore.
- July 29 - Family Day with Deano Day, Davis Daniel and

History of Wayne County fair remembered

She has seen everything from long-john weather in August to noisy "monster trucks" causing neighbors to complain.

Fern Proctor, 73, is headed once again to the Wayne County Fair for the 43rd year.

She first attended the fair in 1952, when the main gate had only one worker, and her son was only three years old. Now, the gates have 40 to 50 workers, who work without pay.

Proctor attended the 1952 Wayne County Fair with her father-in-law. Two weeks later, he died after falling in a barn, she said. Since he "loved to go to the fair," she and her husband continued to go every year after he died.

Although Proctor has never entered any crafts, livestock, or recipes into the fair, watching children with their projects has always been one of her favorite parts of the fair.

"It's good for the children to learn early how to get along with one another," she said. The projects also help the children learn how to keep records.

Proctor's favorite attraction at the fair is seeing the crafts and quilts.

"I always have to go in and see all the handiwork," she said.

Because she used to sew frequently, she said she especially likes seeing the quilts people make for the fair.

Fern Proctor

Before the shanty was built, workers had to endure whatever came along.

"If it rained, you just got wet, that's all," she said.

Proctor adopts a motherly approach to supervising the gate workers, bringing them cold drinks when the weather gets hot.

Cold weather struck the fair in 1974. Proctor said she had to call home, in Dundee, to have long underwear sent down for her husband. Though the fair this year takes place in July, it usually opens in August, she said. They changed the month because they could not book the carnival in August.

The prototype for the Wayne County Fair took place in Northville, in the late 1940s, she said. Nineteen fifty-two was the first year the fair was presented to children of all ages and adults at its current site in Van Buren Township, at I-94 and Belleville Road.

Proctor graduated from Eastern Michigan University and was a teacher on and off for 10 years. She was a substitute teacher for most of those years, so she could spend vacation time with her husband.

She lived on the farm on Proctor Road until 1971, when the farm was sold. She then moved to Dundee, because of the fertile soil and the nice community, she said.

Proctor became a Wayne County Fair board member in 1982 after her husband died.

Moran family involved in many fair activities

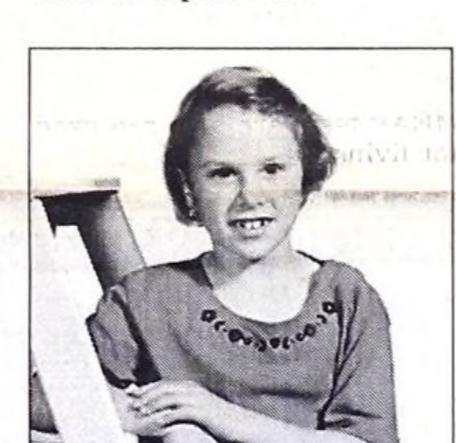

By RACHAEL LEWIS

The Moran family of Belleville will be among the "Faces of the Fair" - those who exhibit and work behind the scenes.

Carol Moran will be entering her canning, crafts, and baking in this year's Wayne County Fair.

"I help by volunteering each year in the open class building. This is my third year. My favorite memory is having a good time putting the building together and watching it work in the end," she said.

Some of her other memories include making crafts, being a Girl Scout leader and enjoying herself at past fairs.

Residents enjoy July 4 celebration

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Successful last minute community sponsored activities marking Romulus' 25th birthday this past July 4th weekend, have created the need for city recreational and volunteer leaders to discuss the timing of next year's festival programs.

In the past decade the annual Romulus Festival has been conducted the same weekend as Michigan Week (third week of May) statewide.

But this year, a last minute "snafu" voiding amusement rides for children, forced festival organizers to call off the scheduled May weekend city celebration.

Mayor Beverly McAnally and city Parks and Recreation Director Brian Hitsky put out a hurried call for volunteer leadership in coordinating a 25th birthday celebration.

Within several weeks a host of programs were organized following several pre-planned events such as the Mayor's Drug Task Force Golf Outing and the Romulus Chamber of Commerce's circus outing toward the end of June.

The majority of the events were conducted between July 1 and 4, with a full workday falling in the middle of the programs.

With leap year occurring in 1996, July 4th will fall on Thursday creating another aborted three-day weekend concept.

Thus McAnally said representatives of the long-term Romulus Festival Committee and the emergency Romulus Hometown Celebration volunteer group will have to meet soon to plan for 1996, particularly if the decision is to switch permanently to the July 4th period.

Decisions also will have to be made as to which Hometown Celebration events will become annual projects, such as the Firefighters Waterball Tournament, horseshoe championship, classic car displays and Art in the Park sales and demonstration session.

Classic car owners and crafters usually plan their outings months in advance, so it is critical that the city announce their plans soon, McAnally said.

It appears almost unanimous that the Firefighters Waterball Tournament was such a crowd pleaser that it will continue, no matter which time period is selected.

Some of the programs were set up for only 1995, such as obviously the city's 25th Anniversary celebration.

Wheeling around Romulus officers begin 'pedal patrol'

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

In response to the constant cry for increased communication and more visibility of local police officers, five veteran Romulus policemen on now on stepped up bike patrols within the city.

The specially trained officers, usually working in pairs, have been assigned to summer and fall bike duty to upgrade neighborhood patrols and to increase communication with local residents.

Police Capt. Eric Painter said the five officers began their new duty cycles early in July and really proved their effectiveness at the crowded July 4th festivities at Elmer Johnson Park.

The officers include John Leacher, Terry Balewski, Terry Cox, Dwayne DeCaires and Matt Robertson.

The city purchased three new Raleigh Police Mountain Bikes for the team and local Union 76 Service Station owner Yasel M. Berry of Middlebelt Road donated a Topanga Diamond Back bike to the program.

The bikes that are constructed to fit the physical size of the police rider are made also to handle rough urban or rural road conditions and are equipped with headlights, red and blue flashing police emergency lights and water bottles.

"These patrols (usually two officers acting as a team) work adjustable hours, some even on midnight shifts," Painter said.

They are assigned normal patrols, as well as residential areas where they can easily converse with the citizens and even have their photos taken with the public when requested, he said. Each officer undergoes an official International Police Mountain Bike Association training course that is called "quiet, cost efficient and amazingly effective."

Bike mounted officers are often able to approach suspects virtually unnoticed, Painter said, and are especially effective in city park situations such as the recent fireworks celebration where thousands were on hand at Elmer Johnson Park.

The training course teaches the officers to ride in all types of traffic conditions, off-road environments and gives them the skills to hop curbs, descend stairways and perform emergency maneuvers designed to prevent crashes.

Officers are also trained to be able to use their bikes as defensive tools in the case of an attack.

Painter is hoping the men can continue using their bikes as late as October or November, depending on local weather conditions.

History book includes interesting items

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Special Writer

Some interesting facts about the Belleville area are presented in Samuel H. Robbe's book History of Van Buren Township, which was recently reprinted and is on sale locally.

The tidbits of history include:

The Bank of Belleville was started as a private institution by Harry German in 1899, in the building later used by the Kroger Grocery Company and another bank.

The former Catholic Church on Main Street was originally built by a society of Episcopalians about the year 1890.

A number of companies built electric railway lines from Detroit to Adrian and Toledo, via Belleville - on paper. After the Detroit Courier printed an article illustrating the plans, nothing more was ever heard of it.

Much of the credit for establishing a park at the Five Points in Belleville goes to May Alban. It was she who proposed it and made a personal canvas of the town and raised $2,500 to purchase the property.

The U.S. census of 1920 found the township to have a population of 2,029.

A branch of the rural library system was established in Belleville in 1921.

At a meeting of the Van Buren Township Board on May 27, 1930, permission was granted the Earl Frazer Corporation, of Detroit, to make a horses, drawing, writing and playing outside.

Whitney's brother, Kevin Moran, 7, who is in first grade at Elwell Elementary School will also be entering his projects in the fair. His projects include fabric paint and Christmas ornaments.

His best memories of the fair include, "the rides, the watermelon eating contest, animals, clowns, food, and the demolition derby."

His other interests include baseball, Nintendo, playing with his friends and being outside.

His career goal is to be a race car driver, he said.

Older children can also write their story.

In 1910 the Eastern Michigan Edison Company purchased the flowage rights and most of the bottom lands along the Huron River in the township.

Reading is popular summer fun

By RACHAEL LEWIS
MCN Special Writer

Summer is here, and parents are challenged with the quest to keep their children occupied and amused in a safe and beneficial way.

The answer has arrived at the Belleville Public Library. With a book, children can improve their reading, learn new facts and keep cool reading on hot summer days.

Many children's books are available at the library. Some of the suggested popular readings for this summer, supplied by Erin Hunt of the library staff, are:

- Where's Waldo
- Books by Dr. Seuss
- Choose Your Own Adventure
- Goosebumps and Fear Street by R.L. Stine

• The Babysitter's Club and Little Sisters by Ann M. Martin. Other popular books for youngsters, according to Hunt, are Sweet Valley High, Sweet Valley Kids and Sweet Valley Twins created by Francine Pascal; Pee Wee Scouts by Judy Delton; Polk Street Schools by Patricia Reilly Giff, and My Teacher Is An Alien by Bruce Coville.

These are just a few of the many titles that you can find in the children's department of the Belleville Public Library, said Hunt.

Boosters!

We're hooked on charm of area

When members of the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce and tri-community elected officials met recently, on the top of their agenda were ideas to promote the area with a single theme.

Central Business Community (CBC) Chairman Tony Sam suggested a nautical theme to highlight Belleville Lake, the only inland lake in Wayne County.

To help develop a theme, the staff of the Belleville Enterprise decided to launch a contest to determine what makes the tri-community area - Belleville, Sumpter Township and Van Buren Township - so desirable. We came up with many reasons that we are "hooked on Belleville," and invite our readers to submit their own ideas.

Whether it is the annual National Strawberry Festival, fishing and boating on Belleville Lake or the unique residential communities, the Belleville area attracts visitors, residents and businesses for a variety of reasons.

The staff of the Belleville Enterprise is "hooked on Belleville" because of its historic background, its turn-of-the-century homes, the sailboats and power boats on the lake, the sight of young and old fishing from lake shore, the Sunday concerts in the park, the popular National Strawberry Festival, the Sumpter Country Fest and the various downtown activities. We're "hooked on Belleville," because of the people - the longtime residents who tell us tales of the "good old days" and the enthusiastic newcomers who are eager to bring new ideas to the community.

We're "hooked on Belleville" because it has its rural areas, along with its bustling suburban neighborhoods. We appreciate the fact that we can buy "fresh picked" vegetables from roadside farmers stands during the summer months, choose a pumpkin from a local farm for Halloween and cut our own Christmas tree here in the winter.

It's easy to be "hooked on Belleville" with its mix of old and new, with its friendly people and community-minded citizens. Now, we've told you why the staff of the Belleville Enterprise is "hooked on Belleville," and we'd like to hear the same from our readers.

Send the reason or reasons that you are "hooked on Belleville" to Belleville Enterprise, 397 Main St., Belleville. Letters should be no longer than 300 words, and must be received by Sept. 1, 1995.

The winning entry will receive a prize of a two-night stay at the Crowne Plaza in Toledo, where the winner can extol the many advantages of Belleville, and, perhaps persuade some Ohioans to see it for themselves.

Four runners-up will each receive one-year subscriptions to the Enterprise, and dinner for two at a Belleville area restaurant.

Both of them explained that their best memory was watching their son receive his

A picnic and auction will be hosted by the Belleville Area Council for the Arts at 5 p.m. Aug. 10.

Following the event, the council will sponsor an appearance by the Ann Arbor Summer Symphony under the Laura said, "It's good to see the kids involved in activities such as this and to take so much pride in their work."

Michael said that the fair is important to him because, "It's enjoyable to meet so many people. I believe functions such as this keep the community together."

Their son, Jonathan, is 6 years old. He attends Edgemont School and is in kindergarten.

Romulus nurse institutes teen abstinence program at center

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Concerned over the growth of teen pregnancies, sexual diseases and drug use in Romulus, a local nurse practitioner is working to start a Michigan Abstinence Partnership program this fall.

Nancy George, who is employed at the Romulus Adolescent Health Center, feels that society cannot ask its youth to just say "no," without being there to help support the teens face the consequences of their decisions.

George is appealing to members of the local schools, churches, governmental units, businesses, service clubs and health care professionals, to join her in a meeting late in August to create the groundwork for such a group activity.

The major emphasis facing the group is current teen health care problems, including pregnancies, sexual diseases as well as use of tobacco and other substances.

Today's teen years are becoming more volatile because teens are learning to become more independent and self-sufficient, she said. Thus they are more willing to make choices based on their own value system or that of their peers.

"We can no longer expect our children to simply say 'no' without our help. Families, schools, health professionals and communities must work together to help teens learn how to resist the negative pressures that are placed on them," George said.

Pointing at statistics closer to home, George said, teens are the fastest growing group being affected by the AIDS epidemic. In 1994 alone, she warned, 26 cases of gonorrhea and 20 cases of chlamydia were reported in Romulus.

In addition, George relates in 1993 the state department of public health reported there were 75 live births to Romulus teens and that does not count the number of miscarriages and pregnancy terminations that year.

George urges those wishing to get involved with the abstinence program to contact her office at 941-1400.
